OPEC may apply sanctions on firms

BONN, April 6 (R) — The Kingdom's Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmad Zaki Yamani said Monday night OPEC countries may apply sanctions against oil companies pressing Nigeria to cut its oil price.

"We don't want to do that, but if it's a necessity, we will do it," he told reporters before making a speech here to the West German Foreign Policy Association. Most major international off companies producing and buying crude oil in Nigeria have asked for a cut in the present Nigerian price of $35.50 a harrel because of the world oil glut and lower prices heing charged by other countries such as Britain

The Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) said Monday OPEC could support the Nigerian price by putting pressure on oil companies, cutting oil output further, extending a credit line for Nigeria, or arranging the forward purchase of Nigerian oil hy other OPEC countries.

Sheikh Yamani was asked if OPEC was likely to hold an emergency meeting soon to discuss Nigeria. He replied: "We are studying the situation right now...l think the situation will be very clear probably by the end of this

Nigeria was allocated an output ceiling of 1.3 million harrels per day (BPD) when OPEC ministers set an overall limit of 18 million BPD at talks in Vienna last month on defending prices in the current oil glut. But oil industry sources have estimated its output has slumped as low as 550,000 BPD since the talks as huyers wanting a price cut moved away.

Sheikh Yamani said his country would cut its oil production further if it felt this was necessary, but he refused to be drawn on the size of a possible reduction. Saudi Arabia has already cut output by 500,000 BPD this month from the March level, lowering its ceiling to seven million BPD.

Asked whether Saudi Arabia had made or was likely to extend a credit to Nigeria, Sheikh Yamani replied this would be consi-

Fahd lauds direct links communications, education, agriculture

WEDNESDAY, APRIL'7, 1982 JAMAD AL-THANI 13, 1402 A.H.

RIYADH, April 6 (SPA) - Crown Prince Fahd said his visit to the country was not meant for a rest but to meet as many people as possible and find out their needs. He said King Khaled has been making similar visits to meet with thousands of people and hear rheir needs and suggestions.

"King Khaled takes with him a number of officials who carry out his instructions at once," he said.

Prince Fahd said his visit was a good chance to meet with a large number of people in the villages and hamlets be passed through and to inspect a number of development projects. He was delighted with the progress being made expecially in and health. He was equally pleased with his meetings with the people which be found constructive and useful for both the officials and the people because of the frank exchanges of views that take place between them. The officials also benefit from such meetings as they obtain a close glimpse of the peoples' affairs and problems.

"We pray to God to perpetuate this blessing of security, stability and close relationship hinding the people together so that we may achieve greater progress and prosperity under the ages of our religion," he said.

Gulf ceasefire urged

KUWAIT, April 6 (R) - Iran and Iraq were urged Tuesday to end the 18-month-old Gulf war when foreign ministers of the nonaligned movement met in Kuwait, only 80 kms from the battlefront.

The foreign ministers of the two states heard Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Kuwait's deputy prime minister, Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, urge them to cease hostilities immediatelt. Both Iran and Iraq belong to the 96-member nonaligned movement whose coordination hureau met to consider ways of helping the Palestinian cause in the face of what ministers called continued Israeli aggression in occupied Arab territories,

The Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and Iraq's Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi have been holding separate talks with nonaligned and Islamic mediators. But Sbeikh Sabah, who is also Kuwait's foreign minister, told the three-day conference that all efforts so far to end the war had failed.

The Iranian delegation later walked out of the conference when Ismat Kittani of Iraq addressed the ministers in his capacity as president of the United Nations General

The Kuwaiti minister called for intensified efforts to end the conflict. He said it was a serious matter for the nonaligned movement, which is seheduled to hold its next summit meeting at Baghdad in September. Arafat said the war must be ended so that nonaligned countries together "confront our common enemy, international imperialism". He said world imperialism led by the United States was giving unlimited aid to and instigating Israel to continue what he termed its policies of aggression, arrogance and terrorism.

Arafat said there would be no peace and security in the Middle East so long as the rights of the Palestinians, including the right to an independent state, were ignored.

Sheikh Sabah said great powers had formed a strategic alliance with Israel to serve their own interests and were now obstructing progress toward a solution of the Palestinian problem. Both Arafat and Sheikh Sabah condemned the United States for vetoing U.N. Security Council resolutions calling on Israel to rescind its annexation of the Syrian Golan Heights and its dismissal of the Palestinian mayors of three West Bank towns, Kittani said it was not the fault uf the United Nations if no solution to the Palestinian problem had been found after more than 10 years. He blamed those U.N. member states which he said "flout resolutions or prefer to work outside the U.N. system."

PEKING, April 6 (R) — Communist China warned the United States Tuesday that their relations were on the brink of a precipice because of continuing American arms ales to nationalist China, Taiwan, but said it was still willing to find a reasonable solution.

Vice-Chairman Deng Xiaoping was quoted as having told visiting former British Prime Minister Edward Heath Tuesday that Washington could not go on trying to run Taiwan as an American aircraft carrier.

An official commentary in the China Daily said the Americans had pushed Sino-U.S. relations to the precipice". The English language newspaper said "it is up to Washington itself to get out of its present predicament. that is, if it wants to."

But a separate commentary in the People 's Daily said Peking was willing to be patient and flexible, suggesting that arms sales to Taiwan might be acceptable for the present provided the U.S. agreed on a deadline to end them. "China can under no circumstances permit the situation of the U.S. selling arms to Taiwan to continue without a time limit," it It pointed out however that China had downgraded diplomatic relations with the Netherlands last year after it decided to sell two submarines to the Taiwanese. "Whether or not Sino-U.S. relations retrogress will depend on whether the U.S. conscientiously respects Chinese sovereignty and is determined to solve the problem of arms sales to Taiwan," the commentary added.

Heath, who is making a private visit to Communist China, was asked at a news conference after his meeting with Deng whether the powerful vice-chairman had commented on President Reagan's plans to sell military spare parts to Taiwan. The $60 million deal is expected to be formally notified to Congress later this month.

Heath said Deng had told him that "Congress must accept that this is just one China and that they cannot go on trying to run Taiwan as, to use their own phrase, American aircraft carrier." Heath said "it is the United States which has got to make up its mind."

Astronomers claim

Einstein's theory is wrong

ful observations of the sun have led astronomers at the University of Arizona to conclude that there is an error in Einstein's general theory of relativity. The Arizona astronomers are scheduled to present their findings Tuesday at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society in Dublin, Ireland.

Einstein's theory explains why there is a certain tiny fluctuation, called a precession, in the orbit of the planet mercury. Until now, Einstein's calculation of this precession had agreed almost exactly with observations made by astronomers. The Arizona researchers say, however, that the effect of the sun on mercury's orbit is slightly different from what Einstein had thought, and when that difference is taken into account, Einstein's theory no longer agrees with astronomical observations.

Philip Goode, an associate professor at the University of Arizona in Tucson, said by

Centenarian gets new teeth in China

PEKING, April 6 (AP) - At the age of 100. Chinese peasant Luo Shijun is growing new teeth, 11 on top and 16 on the bottom of his mouth, a Shanghai newspaper said.

The Wen Hui Bao said news of Luo's new teeth had spread all over his commune in southeast China's Jiangxi province. Wuo was born on Dec. 12 in the Seventh year of the Luang Hua Emperor, or 1881, and had long lived on a mountain side, growing crops and eating sweets, peanuts, curd, eggs and hot peppers with his rice, said the paper's Sunday edition, seen in Peking Monday. He didn't telephone from Tucson that Einstein's calculations were wrong by about 1 percent. That is not a large error, he said, but it is enough to call Einstein's theory into question. Goodc said he and his colleagues, Professor Henry Hill and Randall Bos, a graduate student, made their findings with the help of a very sensitive solar telescope just north of Tucson.

Using the telescope, which is run by the University of Arizona and Wesleyan University in Connecticut, the astronomers observed that the sun is almost constantly rocked by "sunquakes," the solar equivalent of earthquakes. The sun, Goode insists, "is ringing like a bell." They calculate that the sun, like the earth, is flattened slightly at its north and south poles.

Rejects call to resign

Thatcher's future rests on Falklands

LONDON, April 6 (Agencies) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Tuesday rejected opposition Labor Party calls that she resign over the Falklands crisis.

In a House of Commons debate, Mrs. Thatcher replied to a labor heckler: "No — now is rhe time for strength and resolution." During the second Commons debate on the issue since Saturday, Mrs. Thatcher said the government would be "very lappy" if U.S. President Ronald Reagan or any other mediator was able to achieve a peaceful solution. In any event, "our mission is to restore British sovereignty to the islands," she said.

According to observers, Mrs. Thatcher is staking the survival of ber government as well as her political future on recovering the Falkland Islands by diplomacy or force of arms. Mrs. Thatcher, elected Britain's first woman prime minister in 1979 and popularly dubbed "the iron lady," faces the nation's gravest national crisis since the 1956 Suez crisis. She has publicly committed her government, after the resignation of Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington and two top aides, to restoring British sovereignty to the remote South Atlantic archipelago seized by Argentine forces last week.

"She's nailed her colors to the mast," said a senior aide at Mrs. Thatcher's office after she publicly dismissed the possibility of failure to recover the islands. "There's no going back now," the aide commented.

A national opinion poll in The Daily Mail newspaper Tuesday showed that 80 percent of 942 persons questioned around Britain Monday hlamed Mrs. Thatcher's government for what happened and 36 percent hlamed the prime minister personally.

Another poll, on television, showed that while Britons generally favored action against Argentina by the huge British armada that sailed for the Falklands Monday, 25 percent of those questioned thought Mrs. Thatcher should quit. The opposition Labor Party, while hacking the despatch of the British fleet to the South Atlantic subject to continuing diplomatic efforts, has quickly geared itself to make the most of the political fallout from the crisis.

Labor politicians and other parliamentarians believe the resignations at the foreign office have seriously weakened the government. The departure of Lord Carrington, and of Defense Minister John Nott who offered to quit but was told by Mrs. Thatcher to stay at his post, was eagerly sought by the opposi-heads to roll. But the Conservatives will not go as far as Denis Healey. Labor's foreign affairs spokesman in parliament, who says Mrs. Thatcher should have resigned. "It is the prime minister who is responsible in the British government for managing crises," he said. "She is trying to save her neck by sacrificing others, but it won't work." The prime minisier's aides say that as far as they know, Mrs.

Thatcher has not considered resigning. But with $4.4 hillion wiped off the value of British industry in a hurst of panic selling on the stock exchange Monday, a further steep slide in shares Tuesday and pressure on sterling in foreign exchanges, political sources say demand for more government changes could mount.

The person considered most likely to succeed Mrs. Thatcher if she should go is her new foreign secretary, Francis Pym. He has the advantage of coming to the crisis fresh and telatively unscathed from his previous post as the government's manager of parliamentary husiness.

Pym. 60, has had his differences with Mrs. Thatcher in the past, and they have cost him ministerial positions. He wanted to be foreign secretary when she formed her first cabinet in May 1979, but because Lord Carrington insisted on the job or nothing at all, Mrs.-Thatcher sent Pym to the defense ministry. She shifted him from that post last year when he objected to her plans to reduce spending on Britain's conventional armed forces and increase it on nuclear weapons.

London Stock Exchange recorded their biggest one-day fall since World War 11 Tuesday, wiping 5,000 million pounds off their market value.

The stock exchange index fell 17.6 points within the first few hours of opening. The pound also fell to its lowest level against the dollar for four years at 1.7540 and the somber atmosphere deepened in the city amid fears that long awaited bank rate cuts might be reversed.

A wave of panic selling hit the exchange and the pound sterling Tuesday because of market fears that Mrs. Thateher might be compelled by opposition voices in parliament to resign over the loss of the Falklands. Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington quit Monday.

'It is the fear that she will have to follow Carrington and that her policies will not be continued that is causing the panic." said economist Gordon Pepper at stockbrokers W. Greenwell. He said the market reaction was ironically "an incredible vote of confidence in Thatcher's policies" While Monday's fall on the stock market accelerated on opening Tuesday — "it's a bloodbath", commented one dealer, "selling is coming from all sources" - the short-term money market was hectic, with speculators first ten points Monday. The import emhargo is the latest in a series of sanctions taken by the British government. Meanwhile, Britain asked its European allies Tuesday to put economic pressure on Argentina to protest the invasion of the Falkland Islands.

And the North Atlantic Treaty Organization began adjusting its naval defenses to fill the gaps left by departure of nearly 40 British ships from the NATO area to the Falkland Islands 8,000 miles (12,800 km) away.

At Britain's request, amhassadors to the 10-nation European Economie Community met in an emergency session to hear a plea that their countries take anti-Argentine sanctions similar to ones announced in Britain on

After explaining his country's position Monday to the Organization of American States (OAS) in Washington, Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez flew to New York, indicating that his government planned to concentrate un convincing the United Nations. In the OAS, Argentina stressed that with the Argentine presence in the Falklands, the United States had the best possible ally in a strategic point of the South, Atlantic. The permanent Buenos Aires delegate to the organization, Raul Quijano, emphsized that Argentina enjoyed the support of other American nations in its claim to the Falklands.

As the diplomatic strategy unwound,

Argentina was preparing militarily for a British counterattack. Besides strengthening its hold on the Falklands, the military government ordered security measures to be taken at the country's main oil wells at Comodor Rivadavia, and at Rio Gallegas, a rear base for the Falklands operations.

These arrangements involved a partial night-time blackout, which will presumably be extended when the British fleet, which left Portsmouth Monday, approaches the region. In the archipelago, Argentina appeared anxious to reassure the islanders that their way of life would not be interfered with, and that it would respect "commitments made during lengthy diplomatic negotiations with Britam".

Gen. Mario Menendez who is to take over as military governor, denied Monday night that Spanish would become the compulsory language in the Falklands, saying that all announcements would be in Spanish and English. The Argentine government has pledged to improve the standard of living in the Falklands, notably by boosting employment and developing banking and broadcasting services.

In Washington, President Reagan said Monday that the confrontation between Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands put the United States in a very difficult position because it was friendly with both countries. He sold an impromptu press conference in his office that he believed the British and Argentine governments were willing to seek a diplomatic solution to the dispute.

"What we hope for and would like to help them have is a peaceful resolution of this with no forceful action or bloodshed," Reagan

Committee paves way for Saudi-Yemeni talks

ory committee for the Saudi-Yemeni Coordination Council's session began meeting here Tuesday. The Saudi Arabian side in the committee, led by Ibrahim Al-Shoura, head of the Arabian desk at the foreign ministry, arrived here earlier in the day.

The Yemeni side to the meetings is led by .Fathi Salem, head of the central planning authority. The Kingdom's delegation to the coordination council's session, beginning Wednesday, will be led by Prince Sultan, defense and aviation minister.

CORRECTION

In Tuesday's edition of Arab News it was erroneously stated that the Kingdom's revenues from oil exports during 1981 amounted to SR101 billion while the correct figure should have read $101 billion. The Saudi Press Agency which filed the annual report of the Saudi Monetary Agency quoted the figure in rivals instead of dollars. The error is regretted.

Meanwhile, North Yemeni Foreign Minis ter Tuesday stated that the convening of the Saudi-Yemeni coordination council reaffirms joint constructive efforts being made by officials of the two countries to achieve the objectives of growth and development. He said Sandi Arabia's support of development projects in the Arab world reflects its wise policy that stems from a noble sense of responsibility toward the Arab and the Islamic world. He added that the council will review the extent of implementation of development projects being undertaken by the Kingdom in his country, in addition to discussing future projects, bilateral ties and international issues of common concern.

On the other hand, the Yemeni newspaper Al -Thawra described the council as "a bridge of fraternal tres existing between the two Arah neighbors." It said the council represents an honest and practical translation of the means of hrotherly cooperation existing on the basis of mutual respect, noble aims and decent objectives, which reaffirm the depth of relations between the two peoples.

Information Minister Dr. Muhammad Abdo Yamani said that the council focused on recent political developments at the beginning of the session, especially the condilions within occupied Arab territories. The eabinet reviewed reports about the situation and the courageous resistance by "our Palestinian brethren in face of the Zionist repression, killing and irresponsible activities," Yamani said.

Prince Fahd conveyed to the council King Khaled's concern, and reaffirmed support to the steadfastness and just struggle of the Palestinian people. The King also reiterated the Kingdom's stand in support of Palestinians against the Zionist enemy and "those who back it."

The council heard a report by Sheikh Muhammad Ibrahim Masoud, state minister and cabinet member, on the results of the recent Arab foreign ministers conference, held in Tunis, to discuss the deteriorating situation in the occupied Arab territories. Masoud, who led the Kingdom's delegation to the conference, had reaffirmed Saudi Arabia's continuous support to Palestinian fighters against the Zionist enemy's irresponsibility and colonialist activities and meas-results of his recent visit to Iraq during which he was accompanied by Education Minister Dr. Abdul Aziz Al-Khuwaiter. "Contacts between King Khaled, his government and the brothers in Iraq are continuous in order to get to know the situation there," Prince Sultan told the ministers.

Iraq, he said, is inclined toward peace, good neighborliness and the country has no ambitions in Iranian territories according to the statements of Iraqi officials.

The council deliberated on conditions within the international oil market and certain aspects of the Kingdom's petroleum policy, Dr. Yamani said. The ministers also discussed the national agricultural production policy, especially grains. The cabinet commended the Agriculture and Water Ministry's efforts in this regard.

Meanwhile, two senior Palestinian leaders from Al-Khalil have said that the revolt in the occupied Arab territories is an outcome of Palestinian Arabs' total rejection of "Zionist plans to annex the territories through the so-called Israeli civil administration.

Ex-mayor Fahd Qawasmeh and Mufti (grand judge) Rajab Al-Tamimi of Al-Khalil (Hebron) reaffirmed that no peace can be achieved in the area wirhout the participation of the Palestinians and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

The leaders said the Palestinian people were fully aware of the "tsraeli designs to annex their lands."

SR155m deal let for boosting irrigation means

RIYADH, April 6 (SPA) - A national company has won a SR155.6 million contract for improving irrigation and drainage methods in Doumat Al-Jandal and Jonf, it was announced here Tuesday. The contract will be implemented within 24

According to Agriculture and Water Minister Dr. Abdul Rahman Al-Sheikh, the project provides for drilling 17 artesian wells with depths ranging between 300 and 500 meters. The wells will form the main water source for the project. The contract also calls for drawing up irrigation and drainage networks according to latest international methods. The networks will be the covered type fully serving the project's site, he said.

Other works included in the contract are tanks for controlling the distribution of water, workshops, housing units for administrative staff, digging and operating major drainage channels for storm water and building pumping stations and water towers to help in distribution.

The project is expected to have a considerable impact on the reclamation of large agricultural land and belp solve problems arising from salinity and high level of subterranean water. About 1,600 hectares of agricultural land are to be reclaimed.

Meanwhile, Dr. Al-Sheikh also signed Tuesday a SR13.6 million contract for building a dam at Nabhania area. The contract, awarded to a Saudi Arabian company, calls for completion of work within 18 months. Nabhania is located 130 kilometers west of Unaizah on the main Madinah to Riyadh highway.

The proposed dam will feed the subterranean layers from storm water, in addition to shielding villages and towns in the area from hazards of flooding. The dam. made of reinforced concrete-covered sand with controlled ont lets, will have a length of 250 meters and height of 7.25 meters. The two outlets will be sealed with steel gates to help store half-a-million cubie meters of water in the dam. The gates will be opened and closed to regulate the out

ARAMCO CONTRACTORS

Aramco is in the process of improving its method of recording information on contractors. This activity involves entering selected contractor information into the Contracting Department's computer data base which is known as the Contract Information System (CIS). Successful completion of this undertaking will enable Aramco to retrieve accurate and current information from which to select bid slates.

All contractors are kindly requested to check the schedule posted in the Contracting Department in Dhahran to determine when they have been scheduled to attend one of the briefings to be given concerning CIS. At each briefing the new system will be explained and contractors will be advised on how to update information related to their organization.

The first briefing was held on Feb 8, 1982. In order to limit the number of attendees at any one session, contractors are requested to attend on the date scheduled.

Aramco wishes to emphasize the importance of the briefings and strongly urges all Aramco contractors to attend one session.

Your cooperation is appreciated.

Australia supports Palestinian state

CAIRO, April 6 (AFP) — Australia hacks the creation of a Palestinian state, to exist alongside Israel, Australian Foreign Minister Tony Street said in an interview Tuesday with Al Ahram Newspaper.

Street, who flew home this week after visits to Israel and Egypt, said that the Palestinian issue was the "heart of the Mideast problem". and no durable peace was possible without a solution to it. However, the foreign minister told Al Ahram, which closely reflects Cairo government thinking, that Australia would not recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) until the PLO recognized Israel's right to exist.

On Israeli-Egyptian relations, Street said that his impression was that their only difference was on the question of Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza. Turning to bis country's economic relations with Egypt, the foreign minister said trade had increased by 800 percent over the last 10 years, and noted that some 16,000 Egyptians lived and worked in Australia.

Street said in Melbourne he plans to resume the Middle East tour which he cut short to attend an important meeting of Australia's ruling Liberal Party this week. He said the curtailment of the trip would not damage chances of resuming talks later in the year. "It will he a matter of timing but I am definitely going back," he said.

Steet was the first Australian foreign minister to visit the Middle East for 16 years.

Street had already visited Israel and Egypt but was unable to visit Jordan, Saudi Arabia. Bahrain and Qatar. Official sources said this prevented him hearing the views of those countries opposed to the Camp David peace accords.

Ecevit's trial set for April 29

ANKARA, April 6 (Agencies) — Former Turkish Premier and Social Democrat leader Bulent Ecevit will be brought to trial April 29 following a decision Tuesday by the Ankara Martial Law Command, informed sources bere said.

Ecevit, who faces a possible seven-month jail sentence, is accused of violating National Security Council decision banning political discussions. The hasis for the accusation is an interview Ecevit gave to the Dutch television and an article in a German weekly.

In his article, Ecevit criticized the ruling National Security Council for betraying the legacy of Ataturk, the founder of modern Turkey. The former premier also expressed his disappointment with the dissolution of the Republican People's Party which was founded by Ataturk before the Turkish Republic in 1923.

Ecevit was sentenced to three months in jail last October by the Ankara Martial Law Court. He had been found guilty of violating the same decree by distributing a statement to representatives of the foreign press in Ankara.

Meanwhile, the Istanbul chief military prosecutor has decided to close an investigation of former Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel, judiciary sources announced. The Istanbul Martial Law Command had ordered an investigation of Demirel, who heads the Conservative Justice Party, for publication of an article by him in the weekly Hapat.

In another development, nine prisoners have been hospitalized with serious injuries following an overoight row at the Erzurum civilian jail in eastern Turkey, informed sources here said in Ankara Tuesday. The fight reportedly began around midnight, but security forces were prevented by prisoners from entering the wards until this morning. Beds, tables and chairs were broken in the fight, the sources said. There was no immediate comment from official sources on the dispute, which reportedly resulted in heavy injuries to six rightist and three leftist inmates

Trial of Bahrain plotters adjourned

BAHRAIN. April 6 (R) — The trial of 73 persons, mostly Bahrainis, accused of involvement in an Iran-hacked plot against the Bahrain government, was adjourned for the third time after a one-day hearing Monday, government officials said Tuesday.

They declined to give reasons for the postponement of the date of the next hearing. The civilian court met Monday after a nine-day adjournment. The first adjournment for two weeks was requested by defense lawyers when the trial began March 13. Foreign journalists have been refused permission to attend the trial, which is being held in a prison in a remote fishing village.

The prosecution has accused the men of belonging to an illegal organization and possessing arms and explosives. Two of them were also charged with anti-state activities in the service of a foreign power.

The government has said that the men had planned to kill senior government officials, seize public installations and declare an Iranian-style Islamic revolution last December.

Paris excludes PLO role in Israeli murder

PARIS, April 6 (R) — French External Relations Minister Claude Cheysson's aid Tuesday there was no proof the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) had been involved in Saturday's murder here of an Israeli diplomat and he ruled out closure of the PLO's Paris office.

Speaking on French radio, Cheysson said: "We do not believe there will be peace in the Middle East without negotiation. It is advantageous to let the PLO have an office here so it can speak for the Palestinian people."

The Socialist minister also said France rejected violence but could not protect every public place. Several thousand French Jews and their supporters demonstrated in central Paris Monday demanding closure of the PLO office.

Kabul reduces age limit for military enlistment

NEW DELHI, April 6 (AP) — Babrak Karmal, Afghanistan's president, Monday reduced the age of compulsory military service from 21 to 19, Kabul radio reported.

The Afghan army — its ranks reportedly depleted by casualties and defections — is estimated to have a strength of 25,000 to 30,000, down from 90,000 three years ago.

The Pushtu-language newscast, monitored here, said that under an amendment to the military service, students who are conscripted while in 10th grade would be awarded high school graduation certificates without taking examinations. Eleventh A grade draftees, besides getting graduation certificates, also would be eligible to join universities without appearing for admission tests after their two-year service with the armed forces, the broadcast added.

Floods claim many lives in South Yemen

PARIS, April 6 (AFP) — Many persons have died in the worst floods to hit South Yemen in 40 years, the country's ambassador said here Tuesday.

The disaster was made public Sunday when Soviet President Leonid. Brezhnev sent a message of sympathy to his South Yemeni counterpart Ali Nasser Muhammad. The Yemeni amhassador's statement said three governorships (Aden, Lahej and Habban) suffered the most considerable material damage and loss of life.

"Villages, bridges and dams have been completely destroyed, and there are nummerous victims from villages which have been wiped out," the embassy statement said.

President Ali Nasser visited the floodstricken areas to supervise rescue operations, the statement said.

14 injured in Iran pipeline fire

TEHRAN.April 6 (AFP) — Fourteen persons were injured by a fire which raged for several hours in northern Iran after an Iranian-Soviet gas pipeline was blown up near Rudhar, south of Rasht on the Caspian . Sea, "for unknown reasons," press reports said Tuesday.

The fire late Sunday, which threatened a nearby village, was brought under control after several hours, the newspaper Kayhan said. The gas was heading for the Caspian Sea town of Astara, straddling the Iranian-Soviet horder, through a pipeline, which takes gas from Iran to the Soviet Union, a reliable source said.

Western diplomats have reported that for the envoluent in the army of young men below the draft age is commonplace in Afghanistan where an estimated 90,000 Soviet troops are fighting to quell a stubborn insurgency.

In another development, a lire at an Afghan refugee camp near Peshawar in North-West Pakistan Monday gutted more than 150 huts with one refugee girl hurnt to death, Radio Pakistan reported. Afghan refugees were recently supplied oil-stoves for cooking on behalf of several relief organizations. Fire engines from Peshawar and adjoining areas fought the hlaze for three hours, the radio said.

According to a refugee commissioner, about 100 tents, 500 blankets and food supplies bave been sent as an immediate relief for the fire-affected people.

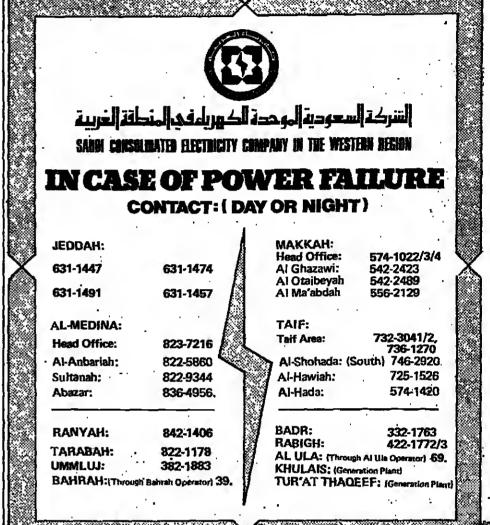

The Saudi Arabian Red Crescent Society has also donated tents, the radio said.

Tunisian premier calls for special OAU session

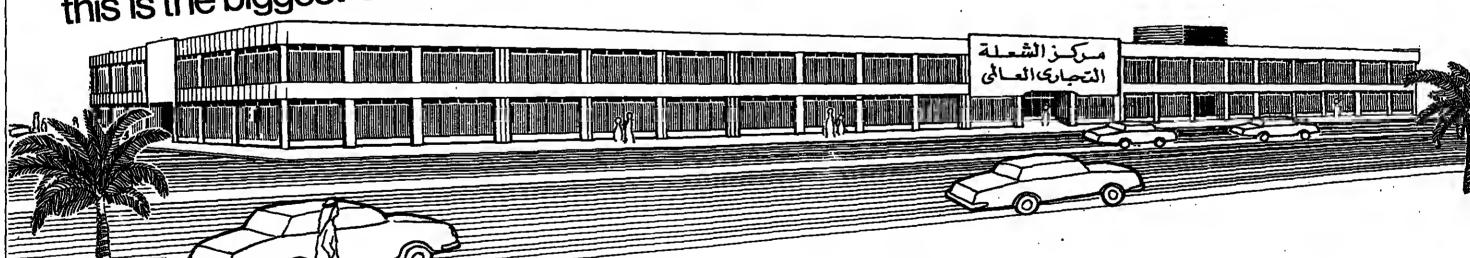

DAKAR, April 6 (AFP) — Tunisian Premier Muhammad Mzali left here Monday after calling for a special Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit meeting to settle the row over the (western) Saharan Arah Democratic Republic's contested admission to the OAU.

He told a press conference at the end of a four-day visit to Senegal that Tunisia would "hack any efforts aimed at saving the OAU" and African unity. A joint communique formally called for a speedy settlement of the conflict in the former Spanish colony between Morocco and the fighters. Internationalization of the conflict risked harming security in north Africa and the rest of the continent, it said.

Mali and his Senegalese counterpart, Habih Thiam, stressed the need to give a new boost to Afro-Arab cooperation.

FIGHT FOR WEST BEIRUT

THE REPORT OF THE PARTY OF THE

Following the "hot" phase of the Lebanese civil war in 1975-1976, the situation in the areas controlled by the rightist Lebanese Front developed in such a way that actual power in the day to day running of affairs as well as in the overall political control became concentrated in the hands of Bashir Gemayel's Phalangist Party. This was achieved at the cost of a mini-civil war within the Front, in which the Phalangists' main adversary was Camille Chamoun's Liberal Party. The development was, of course, carefully noted on other side of divide, in what is called the "left wing" or "Muslim" areas, in which power remained diffused, with the corresponding escalation of chaos on both the security and service fronts. The situation in west Beirut has deteriorated to such an extent that the question is being asked on whether a "Gemayel" solution is viable.

The question is a particularly somber one, given the 800 killed as the Phalangists and Liberals resolved the question of overall control by fighting. In any case, it is pointed out that the diversity of political movements and confessional allegiances, would make such a solution impossible to achieve.

This however does not seem to have deterred the Lebanese Communist Party, together with some other leftist groupings, from putting the point on the agenda with the consequent objection from other parties and groups, for whom there can be no comparison between the two areas. The move is seen by the rest as an attempt by the Communists and leftists to gain control of west Beirut, and as such is bound to be resisted strongly...

Saudi Arabian press review

The Saudi Arabian-Yemeni relations in the light of the upcoming visit to Sanaa by Defense and Aviation Minister Prince Sultan, the Iran-Iraq conflict, Libyan leader Qaddafi's irratiooal acts and the deteriorating situation in the Middle East were the main subjects of editorial comment in Tuesday's newspapers.

Dealing with Prince Sultan's visit to Sanaa Wednesday. Okaz said it would pave way for further strengthening of bilateral relations in all spheres between the two brotherly states.

On the same subject, Al-Bilad said the visit reflected unique characteristics of a joint vision ensuring welfare and progress for the two peoples in harmony with what it called their "deep-rooted historic ties.

considerable popular support, largely because of economic dissatisfaction with the elected government of President Hilla Limann. However, the economy has been moribund for longer than the 26 months that Limann held power. In the past 20 years Ghana was one of only 10 countries in the world to experience a decline in per capita gross national product.

hrief sketch of historical events up to, and including, Israeli invasion and occupation of the West Bank and Gaza. Fingering the PLO as the prime obstructionist to the peace process he then poses two "key" questions: "Why does the PLO totally reject Camp David and how has the PLO come to control the political public in the territories?" This brings Milson to the heart of the matter, the role of the PLO. In answer to his first question, Milson states that PLO's acceptance of any plan proposed within the framework of Camp David, even the Egyptian proposals for an independent Palestinian state, is impossible because it would involve the implicit recognition of Israel.

Milson rejects that there has been any modera-tion whithin the PLO during the last 30 years and labels as a justification its refusal to negotiate within the Camp David framework. Furthermore, he accuses the United States of accepting this "justification" and of pressuring Israel to he satisfied with a contractual settlement.

In answer to how the PLO has come to control the West Bank and Gaza. Milson's analysis is both detailed and revealing of his own profound misconceptions as to the political dynamics of the area. "The PLO's political dominance in these territories is not a 'oatural' development," he claims, but is, at least in part, a result of certain acts of omission and commission by both Israeli and American officials.

He examines the details of post-1948 Palestinian integration into Jordan, and observes that a Jordanian administration was set up in the West Bank by King Abdullah only after approval had been granted in a popular referendum, that Jordan was the only Arab country to extend citizenship to all Palestinians, and that a system of partonage soon developed between the Jordanian royal palace and their Palestinian representatives in the West Bank. Following Israeli occupation in 1967, Milson explains, this system of patronage, based on access to power, was disrupted. The Israeli military government administered "objectively" and the previous power hases of the Palestiniao officials were Rawlings, a 34-year-old who first seized power in 1979 before turning over the government to Limann, has declared a war on corruption, which is termed Kalabule here. Kalabule means not only graft but also charging more than an honest price.

The assaults in this war have included the banning of the 50 cedi note, the largest in circulation, to mop up excess liquidity while striking a blow at wealthy husinessmen. The government has also ordered a sharp reduction in prices.

Receotly women traders were flogged for overcharging in the street markets, and in several cities. including Accra, street markets have been demolished in the war against kalabule.

The unintended result is that goods are no longer available. Merchants are naturally unwilling to sell at the loss-making official prices. Bread is impossible to buy and grocery store shelves are often empty. Enormous queues form for gasoline, with owners leaving their cars in the queue for the night. Food shortages are likely to grow worse until about July when the oext harvest reaches the market.

Frustration could have boiled over by then. Some blood already had been shed. "The government claims only 16 persons have been killed. That's nonsense," said one observer. "Some say more than 2.000 have been killed. My best guess is 100 to several hundred deaths."

Disappearances are common, as are reports of bodies being discovered. These have not been official executions but freclance rampages by soldiers. Despite stern warnings from Rawlings, many soldiers have used their new authority to settle

One man in Terna was shot dead when he stepped outside his house after curfew. In Kumasi, Maj. Joc Although Milson does not mention the 1973 war or its effect on the conflict, he does point out that in the following year, at the 1974 Rahat conference, Arab countries agreed that the PLO should be recognized as the sole representative of Palestiniaos.

Menahem Milson's plan for the West Bank and Gaza

The results of the 1976 municipal elections in the. West Bank destroyed the prevailing Israeli expecta-tion that "economic growth and prosperity would in themselves have a moderating effect. The naive assumption that rising prosperity ... would counterhalance radicalizing influence and form a barrier : between the populace and the 'terrorist' organizactions was not borne out," Milson wrote. De-Jordanization became anti-Israeli radicalization and instead of moderating their positions the mayors turned municipalities into power bases for the PLO, he stated.

After the 1976 elections, the PLO reinstituted familiar forms of patronage, funneling money from Arah countries to their supporters in all the major towns in the West Bank.

By the onset of the Camp David negotiations in 1978 and 1979, Milson observes, the PLO had worked to create a "monolithic front" and was punishing any deviation from it. It became clear that the implementation of any agreement ... "would require the consent and cooperation of at least some of their leaders." In the vanguard of the PLO supporters were the municipal mayors, and the location of much of their organization was in the three major universities to the West Bank — Bir Zeit, Bethlchem and Al Najah.

"The socio-political situation that developed under the Israeli military government (during the 70s) was one in which the halance between radical and practical became skewed ... radicalism and expendience came to be "stacked" on one and the same side," according to Milson's article.

This unfavorable and unacceptable turn of events is neither "inevitable or irreversible," Milson claims. "In order to effect progress to peaceful settlement, one must create cooditions within which moderates io the territories will be able to express tbeir views openly."

"It is important to realize that the extreme radical groups of Palestinians in the territories are not necessarily the "authentic" representatives," Milson claims." One cannot hope to have an agreement with ... protagonists of absolute dogma who negate any form of compromise." 'One can reach agreement with those who are

ARAB NEWS_JEDDAH

The eveots of recent weeks in the West.Bank give ready and conclusive evidence that Milson, with the support of Sharon and Begin, is carrying out his plans. The creation of village leagues, whose leaders, armed with Israeli-supplied submachine guns, are sometimes little more than thugs and ruffians, — in the words of a Jerusalem Post article — and the simultaneous ouster of elected mayors are only the first predictable steps of the proces.

If the United States fails to cooperate on this issue, then there is always the threat of an fsraeli invasion of sonthern Lebanon, "provoked by PLO violations" of the current ceasefire, or possibly some action against Jordan, should they persist in seeking arms purchases from the United States.

American press reaction has been, for the most part, quite critical of Israeli attempts to squash the PLO mayors and compel Palestinians to work through the municipal leagues to obtain basic social services. In a New York Times article published April I, Anthony Lewis wrote: "Israel is trying, by force, to bring a million Palestinians under its permanent control ... there could not be a surer recipe for division, hatred, insecurity." Writing in The Washington Post Oo the same day, Philip Geyelin coocludes that "It is Milsoo's simple purpose to climinate every possible vestige of PLO influence on the West Bank." He also writes that 'Milsooism is directly at odds with everything we know about the Reagan administration's plans for advancing the Camp David peace process.'

The collision course is clear. The Israeli government will continue to pursue de facto aonexation of the West Bank and Gaza on the ooe hand, while oo the other, it plays to the Reagan administration by arguing that such action is necessary for continuing the Camp David process and for pursuing a "pro-Western" strategic alliance in the Middle East.

Direct broadcast TV can beam propaganda or help Third World

WASHINGTON (WP) - There is a spectrum haunting Europe: the frequency spectrum of international televisioo. New media technologies-direct broadcast satellites, for one - make it technically possible for the U.S. to beam TV programs into a country whether it wants it or not. By the end of the decade, Europe will be a target in the video generation of propaganda wars.

That is why the U.S. International Communications Ageocy's receot star-laden propaganda spectacular Let Poland Be Poland was such a silly idea: who cares if America, Western Europe or Africa saw it? The people who might have some influence about letting Poland be Poland were in Hungary or the Ukraine. The program preached to the converted.

Television, as the most compelling and bypnotic medium ever devised, offers policymakers an intriguing way to circumvent the status quo and appeal directly to public opinion. According to Soviet sources, the Soviet Union is 70 to 75 percent wired for television today, and will be up to 90 percent by the end of the decade. Powerful, informative programing could create internal pobtical pressures in such a target country. Television alone might never win over hearts and minds, but if well done, it's bound to win attention.
The Eastern bloc knows this.

"Eastern Europe, led by the Soviet Union, would do everything in its power to prevent direct broadcast television," asserts William E. Schaufele Jr., president of the Foreign Policy Associatioo and Ambassador to Poland from 1978 to 1980. "They bave a real fear of direct broadcast television. ... It would have a significant impact — obviously, not only is picture more effective than sound, but the existing programing in Eastern Europe is very drah. I think people would time in to TV the way they tune in to Radio Free Europe."

Many Kremlinologists agree with Schaufele. They point to the extreme lengths the Eastern bloc andience goes to today to receive Western short-wave broadcasts. They say this demonstrates the enormous potential audience for direct broadcast tele-

They add that Soviet attempts to jam Western land-based radio today is very expensive and only spottily effective. Who knows what it would take to try to stop a television signal from 23,000 miles in space that covers half a continent?

The telecommunications frequency spectrum is a limited resource: It has to be managed. And, just as there is a finite frequency spectrum, there are a limited number of slots" in space in which to park a direct broadcast satellite so it will work right. Every few years, the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) convenes a World Administrative Radio Conference (WARC) to allocate slots along with spectrum frequeocies. At the 1979 WARC, satellite slots were assigned in a way that makes it very difficult for the United States to use direct broadcast satellites internationally.

However, the problem is probably moot especially in Europe. "It will be a few years down the line before we have overt 'satellite wars," says Jooathan Miller, editor of the infineotial trade publication Satellite Week. "(Bot) in Europe, signals will be shurping all over the place. My guess is that Russians will be watching West European television and there's nothing their government can do

Spies sell electronic 'secrets'; many undetected

By Michael A. Hiltzik

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (LAT) - One sweltering day in September, 1978, Francis Thomas Dunlap sat in a popular Chinese restaurant in San Jose, Calif., driving a hard bargain. Across the table was Peter K. Gopal, a slight 39-year-old oative of Singapore who had worked as an eogineer for a string of high-technology companies and later established himself as a "coosultant" to the indus-

Gopal's pitch to Dunlap oo this particular afternoon concerned secrets. As Gonal understood things, Dunlap was an executive of National Semiconductor Corp., one of the top manufacturing companies in the silicoo valley area of Santa Clara County, Calif., known for its high conceotration of makers of silicon-based electronic circuits, or chips.

To Gopal, that made Dunlap a potential customer, for Gopal was selling the confidential designs and production specifications of a line of computer chips developed and marketed by Intel Corp., perhaps the most technologically advanced company in the valley and an important National Semiconductor competitor.

Gopal assured Dunlap that the designs he had for sale were "genuine Intel" as the men dined, "I have very important people inside Intel who give me access to this information." he confided.

Dunlap proved a tough and skeptical customer, demanding detailed descriptions of what Gopal had for sale. At length, after complaining about Gopal's prices and delivery schedule, he agreed to buy the plans for

Intel's best-selling 2114 computer memory chip for $100,000 in unsigned traveler's

But Dunlap's National Semiconductor identification was forged. His true employer was Intel Corp., and the conversation at the restaurant was being monitored and recorded from a van in the parking lot by Intel's security chief and two Santa Clara police offic-

Two days later, when Gopal and Dunlap met again at Gopal's oearby condominium to complete the sale, Gopal was arrested and charged with possessioo of stolen trade secrets. Last October, he was sentenced in State Superior Court to two years and eight months in jail for his conviction on four counts of possessing stoleo trade secrets, one count of conspiracy and one of trying to bribe a National Semiconductor employee to steal National's secrets. (He is currently free on

The case against Gopal is unique in several ways. It is the only documented case of freelance theft and sale of trade secrets in the silicon valley, a regioo where authorities believe that sensitive industrial information is commonly traded in the so-called "gray" market, in some cases to the Soviet Union and its satellites.

It also represents one of the few times that public law-enforcement officials have been called in oo a case of industrial espionage, which most corporate victims prefer to handle as private matters.

As investigators pieced together Gopal's history, a portrait emerged on an experienced engineer who had spent several years accumulating friends and contacts at many of the small engineering houses and subcootracting shops serving the silicoo valley.

Some of his acquaintances owed him money. One was James J. Catanich, a skilled electronics draftsman whose short association with Gopal ended with his facing a felony charge, his marriage and career effectively destroyed. He pleaded oo contest to one charge of receiving stolen property and was fined $5,000 and sentenced to a suspended jail term.

In February 1978, Catanich borrowed $10,000 from Gopal for a home loan. Gopal told him, Catanich later said, that the balance could he applied to work he would perform for Gopal's firm. A Santa Clara police report based on an interview with Catanich said "Gopal would use money as a 'lever' ... to force Catanich to do things which Catanich did not feel were right." Catanieb would become a major figure in the prosecution, beloing Intel develop the evidence that would lead to Gopal's convictioo.

In early September 1978, an electronics industry supply salesman named Andrew Monre cornered Lawreoce H. Worth, then National's purchasing chief, at a routine sales meeting. Monre asked Worth if National would be interested in a "package deal" for secret Intel processes for the manufacture of a number of Intel memory chips, the building blocks of computers.

"I told him I would get back to him," Worth later told a Santa Clara County Grand Jury. He added that, on the suggestion of his superiors at National, be strong Moore along until the salesman set up a meeting between Worth and Gopal in a Sunnyvale apartment. At that session, according to Worth's grand jury testimony, Gopal scribbled oo a blackboard the oames of six Intel products for which he could provide the manufacturing process plans and computer data tapes. Then be scribbled his asking price of $1.6 million.

After Gopal made his $1.6-million offer, according to the accounts of several participants, Intel became intimately involved with the case.

When National sought someone to make an undercover buy from Gopal (Worth was reluctant to participate), Intel volunteered Dunlap, theo an administrator of technology exchange for Intel, a job that made him familiar with his company's engineering. He also was studying for a law degree. This combination of engineering and legal background, Intel executives thought, was ideal for this

Dunlap was equipped with certain oecessary equipment. The National Semicooductor plant badge was forged for him (with National's approval). As a precaution, a faked personnel dossier for Dunlap was dropped into the National office files, and his dossier was removed from Intel's.

On Sept. 25, 1978, wired for sound, Dunlap met with Worth, Monre, and Gopal at Fung Lum's Chinese restaurant in San Jose for the crucial meeting at which the "genuine Intel" information was put up for sale.

Gopal argues that prosecutors and the judge at this non-jury trial misconstrued his offer. What he agreed to sell, he maintains, was simply a reverse-engineered copy of the 2114, legally obtained. He led Dunlap and Worth to believe that he had access to Intel's trade secrets, he said in a recent interview. because be thought that would get him the

ToVietnamese, improving is a way of life

HANOl (Depthnews) - Vietnam has been a battleground for two geoerations. It has been fought over for so long, with words and pictures as well as with bullets, that the country had its people bave become for many outsiders symbols rather than flesh and blood reality. The reality comes to the visitors as a shock — the more shocking when it is realized how close the Vietnamese have come to the limits of survival.

The first view of Hanoi is sufficiently symbolic. From the air, many of the paddy fields appear round instead of rectangular, the result of sporadic bombing over the years. The "international airport" is a collection of sheds, and not very new ones, at that, although the runway is lined with sleek jet fighters - another good ooe for the image merehants.

But that is the last the visitor sees of the war or of the war machine, unless be goes to the northern border or to Kampuchea. The narrow and apparently endless road into Hanoi winds through paddy fields and slightly more modern market gardens. Farmers follow their huffalos knee-deep in water as they have done for cecturies, womeo beod double transplanting rice in neat rows, kids stand in clumps at the side of the road. The image that comes to mind is one of timelessness and of Nearer Hanoi the road is far from peaceful. North Vietnam boasts some of the world's oldest vehicles still in daily use and they stand nose to tail for miles oo the approaches to the Red River bridge, like a drawing of the walk-ing wounded in World War I. Drivers and passengers stand about or perform lifeprolonging miracles with bits of wire.

Thirty years of make-do-and-mend have made a very tough, very resourceful people out of the North Vietnamese; hut surely, the visitor asks, there has to be a limit to their ingenuity? Not obviously,

Take, for example, the bicycle. The Vietoamese can adapt a bicycle to do oearly anything hut fly, and perhaps that is oo the drawing board. It can carry anything from a baby to a piece of timber. Two together can trundle a steel girder across towo. It can be a taxi or a towing truck. With panniers oo the wheels and a scale oo the back it is a mobile shop. A tarpaulin stretched over it makes it a shelter from rain or sun. Business is done on them, families quarrel on them.

Like the motor car to the Americans the bicycle has become a way of life to the Vietnamese. But instead of having a dozen customized vehicles, depending on whether you want to get married hury your uncle or take your livestock to market, in Vietnam one machine serves for everything.

The hicycle is mainly a town resident's status symbol, and in the towns those who make, sell and repair bicycles are important

Small logging community weighs the pros, cons of an oil pipeline

By Bill Curry

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (LAT) Karen Theraldsen and ber busband Rolf traveled the world before settling in this small logging community squeezed between the Strait of Juan de Puca and the snowcapped ranges of the Olympic Mountains. "When we saw this," she recalls, "it was truly unique - the mountains, the water and something we thought was very valuable, the quality of

Now, she fears, that may all be lost if a proposed supertanker port is built in Port Angeles to bring Alaskan crude oil to a pipeline that would be built under Puget

But Bill Feeley, an unemployed carpenter who has worked only three weeks since last August, believes the same oilport and pipeline would not spoil Port Angeles, but save it with the jobs it would provide in a town where unemployment is nearing 25 per-

"We're stagnating, and the no-growthers could care less," said Feeley, a 35-year-old oative, who bas depleted his savings and lived with his wife and two childreo on $150 a week in unemployment insurance. He looks the 2.7 billion construction project for hope. "It's oot a cure-all," Feeley said, "but it's a start at getting people pointed in the right directioo."

The proposed northern tier port and pipeline would be the first in the oation to send crude oil from west to east, a major shift in the country's oil transportation network. Federal officials say it is oecessary for the natioo's security. But in Port Angeles a small Olympic Peninsula city of 17,000, many believe their community would carry the burdeo and risks while the benefits went to such distant companies as U.S. Steel and Westinghouse, two partners in the project who stand to profit from supplying the pipe and pumps.

Says a spokesman for the Northern Tier Pipeline Co., the consortium that wants to build the project: "it's a classic jobs vs. the environment issue."

"That's what they want you to believe," says a disagreeing mayor Dorothy Duncan, "it's David vs. Goliath,"

Only Washington Gov. John D. Spellman's approval is needed to turn the six and onehalf-year-oil port proposal into reality, but a key state agency, the Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council, recommended Feb. 8 that the governor refuse to allow Northern Tier to build here on to put 18 miles of 42inch diameter pipeline carrying a million barrels of crude oil a day under the waters of Puget Sound.

"Oil tankers, under the best of conditions - especially during offloading - do explode and catch fire," the energy site council's chairman, Nicholas D. Lewis, said. "The risk is rather small, we don't dispute that. But no risk is acceptable at that location. A major explosion at that location would be catastrophic. Put it someplace else; there are other locations outside of downtown Port Angeles."

The council also cited the possibility of a rupture in the pipeline under Puget Sound, a threat to the fish, marine life and people who depend on it. "At worst case," says Lewis, "you're talking about 70,000 barrels of oil, which is a hunch of oil... the curreots are swift.. (and the) oil can go anyplace."

The governor has until April 9 to act on the council's recommendation, and the political pressures are intensifying: statewide joblessness is now 12.4 percent, and Central American turmoil increasingly nears the Panama Canal, which now brings most Alaskan oil

Organized labor in Washington state tried to unseat Mayor Duncan last year by making campaign contributions to her labor-unioo opponeot. Now it has launched an all-out campaign to sway Spellman. Last week, the Northern consortium released public opinion polls claiming support for a port and pipeline. Recently the Reagan administration offered the Republican governor classified "oational defense" briefings.

Meanwhile, the city has spent $275,488 to oppose the port, and surrounding Clallam County is also opposing it.

But the farther from Port Angeles the pipeline gets, the more popular it gets. It would wend its way east through five states. and local, state and federal officials along the way have endorsed the underground line that would be ooticeable, after construction, mainly for the tax dollars it would generate. Five county officials from eastern Washington, for example, served on the energy facility site council and favored the port and pipeline.

Now after 18 months of hearings, 44,000 pages of testimooy, 900 exhibits and dozens of on-site inspections by the Energy Facility council. Spellman is poring over its 485-page report at night, making it with a yellow high-

If the governor accepts the recommendatioo, it would be the death knell for Northern Tier's oilport here and its Puget Sound pipeline. It is not known whether Northern Tier, with the only remaining west-to-east pipeline proposal among the bandful once offered, would seek another port location and pipeline route or simply give up like the

"Six of these, and we're the only survivor," said Northern Tier's chairman, Cortlandt S. Dietler in his office in Denver. "At least 1 think we're a survivor. We have all the principal permits that are required except those of Washington state...1,500 miles of pipeline and we're going to end up with one permit per

The pipeline proposals grew out of vast crude oil discoveries at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay and a decision by the Canadian government to halt oil exports to the United States, where refineries in the upper Midwest depend oo Canadian crude. A west-to-east line was seen as a balance to these oil cutoffs and a glut of Alaska oil in the west.

Dietler estimates the port and 1,491-mile pipeline from here to Clearbrook, Minn., could cut shipping time for Alaska oil from a mooth to a week. The company has hilled the pipeline - and the Carter administration approved it over the other pipeline proposals - as an "all-American" project to be built on American soil by American workers using American goods.

"This pipeline," says Dietler, putting his feet oo the desk and lighting his cigar," including all the tankage, amounts to almost a million tons of steel — the biggest single steel order for a single project (in American history)."

And none of Northern Tier's nine stockholders owns more of the company than U.S. Steel - 26.1 percent. "That's going to put a lot of people to work," Dietler says.

Jobs have become the rallying point for public support for the pipeline in the northwest. Local concerns have focused on safety, oil spills, the impact on electricity rates and suppliers, a bost of environmental issues from boomtown problems to clean air and even to beliefs that the pipeline is a sales ploy for U.S. Steel and Westinghouse.

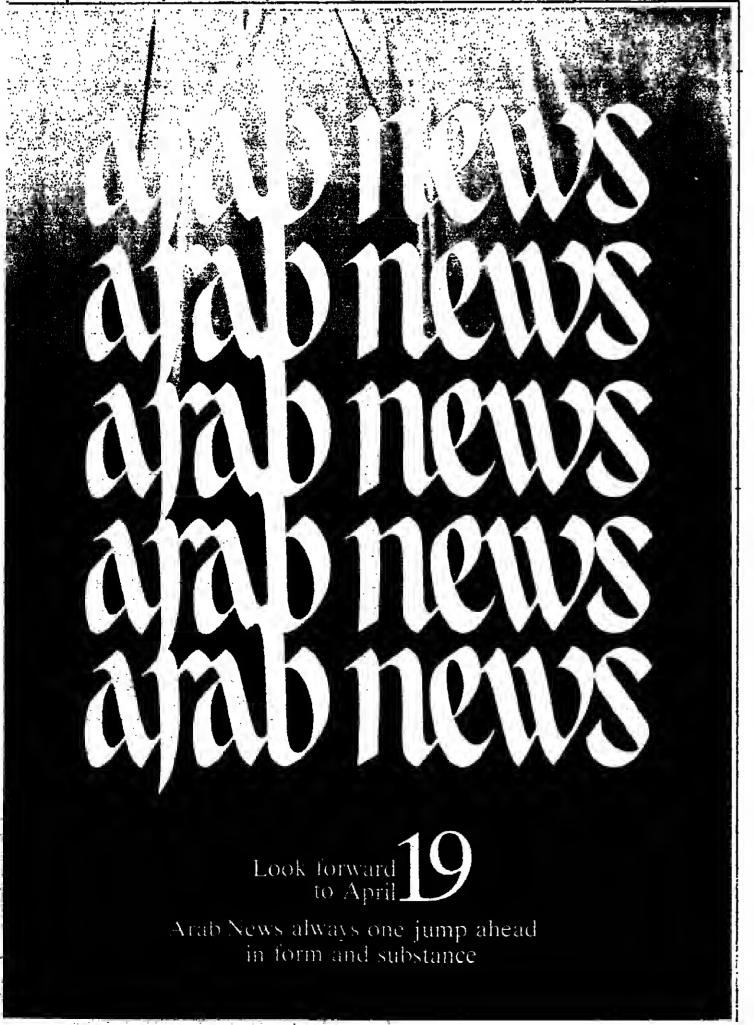

"There is oo justified oeed for the project," says Norma Turner, president of No Oil Port Inc., a Port Angeles-based group, we can all talk about boom-bust, air quality and oil spills. But if it shouldo't be built, wby try to ameliorate the impacts?"

Nonetheless, jobs are now the overriding public debate, and few people think Northern Tier would bave much local or regional support without the current two-year depression in the state's forest products industry. There are 241,000 unemployed in Washingtoo, more people than at any time since the Great Depression.

It is estimated that the pipeline would provide 3,400 construction jobs and 125 permaoeot jobs at a Port Angeles headquarters. Opponents contend, however, that most pipeline workers will come from out of state. And they say that one document places the headquarters in Montana.

The prospect for jobs and the change that would come with them have divided this commuoity. Clayton Rennie, a retired teacher, opposes Northern Tier and its impact. He asked: "who speaks for prosperity? Who speaks for the people who are not even here? Everything is expediency right now. How about down the road 20 years, 25 years? What's going to be the quality of life for the children that are not even here now?"

Say Jom Noeldner, who supports Northern Tier: "I want my two young boys who are two and five to grow up (here) in an area that has the quality of life that they could find in very, very few places in the country. By the time my sons graduate from high school, I would like them to have the opportunity to decide whether or not they wanted to work and live in this area. As things stand currently, they have very few chances... people who are coming out of high school have to go to other

Continue past practice, honor the 'third agers'

By Manolo B. Jara

MANILA (Depthnews) — The French have coined a term for it, troisieme age or "third age." It refers to that phase in life following infancy and maturity when one reaches 60 and is thus considered "aged" or

"elderly."
Usually in the industrialized world, when one is elderly, one is considered helpless and uscless with only one solution: consign him to a geriatric hospital or to a home for the aged.

Not so in many developing countries. There the "third agers" are traditionally accorded a place of honor in the community. In fact, in these countries, wisdom is still equated with age and the elderly are often considered to be the natural statesmen of the vil-

And this is precisely what Director-General Hafdan Mahler of the World Health Organization has warned the Third World to guard against. He said: "... there is a real danger that the mistakes, made elsewhere, of excluding the aged from the life of the community will be repeated.

"Just when the most industrialized countries are rediscovering the human worth of the aged and trying to allow them to live within the community and outside of institutions, whenever possible, it would be tragically ironic if developing nations were to discard their own traditions which accord a place of honor to the aged."

Dr. Mahler's fears seem well-founded... Many developing countries are now undergoing rapid changes as they industrialize and large portions of their population move into big towns and cities. In such a situation, traditions are discarded, leaving their "third agers" on the lurch.

Dr. Mahler's warning gains added significance because of the growing number of the elderly. Estimates place the world's aging population in 1980 at roughly 370.8 million or 8.4 percent of the total population of 4.4 billion. With declining mortality rate, their number is expected to reach 582.7 million or 9.4 percent of the projected 6.1 hillion population by the year 2000.

In Asia, the world's most populous region, "third agers" will total about 280 million by the year 2000, or nearly half of the world's elderly population. As a result, Asia is approaching the threshold of a dramatic change in its age structure, said a United

WORLD HEALTH DAY: Public attention on the rights of the aging is being focused on today by the World Health Organization. WHO urges that attention should be focused on adding life to years. It emphasizes that the old and the very young can share many gifts and the relationship can be one of the most rewarding in life.

According to the study, while the total population will increase by about 52 percent, the over-60 age group will increase at a far rapid rate of about 102 percent. This makes them the fastest growing segment of the world's population, giving rise to a number of unique social and economic circumstances being experienced by the elderly population to government decision makers "as well as the need to include the aged in the social, economic and political programing of soci-

Toward this end, the U.N. organized regional forums on the problems of the aged and how best they could be helped. The Asia-Pacific regional forum was held in Manila last

In the conference, Asian participants stressed that the welfare of the "third agers" is a pressing problem which should be given serious attention before it becomes too late.

They were emphatic in saying that. "Care for the aging should be provided within the family, and the institutionalization of the aging should be strongly resisted." Again, this is in ohvious reference to the usual practice in the industrialized world to consign their "third agers" to homes of the aged or geriatric hospitals.

The emphasis, the participants said, should be community-based and given utmost family involvement — as is now the case in the care of the elderly in many developing nations. They warned that the institutionalization of the aged would only hasten their mental and physical deterioration.

For aging is indeed a vulnerable period. The elderly are at greater risk than any other age-group, except infants. A lifetime of exposure to hostile elements in the environment, the ticking down or the irregular ticking of the biological clock make them particularly vulnerable.

And this is where the urgency of meeting the special needs of the aging comes in, apart from a change in present attitudes towards them. As WHO's Dr. Mahler emphasized: "The aged can contribute in many ways. In the realm of art, masterpieces by the elderly are frequent and the aged sculptor or musician is rightly appreciated. But there are many other useful vocations which the aged would like to perform if they are not deliberately excluded.

Rep. Dean is denying that his vote against the death penalty for juveniles makes him, as Rep. Bean has charged a leading member of the criminals' lobby. He adds that if his opponent had supported prayers in public schools there wouldn't be as many juvenile delinquents who merited execution.

Rep. Bean says that it Rep. Dean had done his homework, which he was notoriously unable to do because of having so many speaking commitments before hleeding-heart organizations, he would know that he had voted in favor of prayers in schools.

Of course Rep. Bean voted for the final bill says Rep. Dean. Who hadn't? But viewers of this program could look for his name among the bill's sponsors until their eyes ached and they wouldn't find it. He doesn't mean to imply that Rep. Bean is necessarily an atheist, Rep. EEC to invite allies for talks

BRUSSELS, April 6 (AFP) — Japan, Canada and the United States are to be invited by the European Economic Community (EEC) to talks oo international trade next month in Paris, an EEC Commission source said Tuesday.

Invitations are about to be seet for this gathering which is planned between a ministerial meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris oo May 10 and 11, and the Western Economic summit at Versailles on June 7 and

The EEC Commission source said the hasic idea of the gathering was "to try to find a common language" ahead of the Versailles event at a time when the EEC is in conflict with the U.S. and Japan on various aspects of trade and pressure for protectionist measures is appreciable.

In a related development, some 150 top North American, Japanese and Europeao husiness men and political leaders Tuesday concluded the meeting of the trilateral commission with discussions on economic relations with the Communist bloc and a look at U.S. economic policies,

Participants in the three-day meeting also discussed further a topic that has been a focus of this session of the nine-year-old organization — Japanese trade surplus with the other two partners in the commission.

- Trade and defense, said former Chase Manhattan Bank chairman David Rockefeller, are the two major sources of misunderstanding between the United States and Japan. In a post-session briefing Rockefeller added, however, that the degree of hard feelings between the two sides has been exaggerated. "just as in any family, one has squabbles and disagreements," he said.

Georges Berthoin, European chairman of the Trilateral Commission, said Japan, which in the past has tended to shy away from independent political and diplomatic stances displayed a leading role in the workings of the commission.

With trade deficit rising

Kenya economy outlook dims

NAIROBI, April 6 (R) — The ecocomy of Keoya, long regarded as an island of capitalist success in Africa, is in trouble.

The boom years of 1976-77, when prices of the major exports coffee and tea hit record peaks, have given way to a long lean spell and officials say the outlook is for more of the same.

Keoya has had years of political and economic stability since independence in 1963, in contrast to the political opheaval and financial crises in such neighbors as Uganda and Tanzania. Kenyan officials complain that foreign observers tend to use sterner criteria in assessing the country's performance.

in assessing the country's performance.

Diplomats concede there is some truth in this, hut there is general agreement among independent analysts that the economy is in poor shape and the only argument is whether or not it has hit the bottom of the trough.

The outward signs are serious and persistent trade deficit, a large shortfall in the current account halance of payments, a foreign exchange squeeze and sluggish growth well below official targets.

In addition there has been double-figure inflation for many years, government borrowing rose by more than 70 percent last year, and drought forced the government to import substantial amounts of food in 1980-81.

After independence gross domesoc product (GDP) expanded at an average annual rate of 6.6 perceot until 1973 but it then fell to around four percent until 1977, official figures show.

Uoder a 1979-83 development plan GDP growth was targeted at an annual rate of 6.3 percent hut this was scaled down to 5 percent because of world recession, higher oil prices, lower commodity returns and a widening hal-ance of payments deficit.

It proved an ambitious target. GDP growth — the total output of goods and services in the economy — in 1980 was 2.4 percent and is estimated to have been between 3.5 and four percent last year against a revised target of 5.9 percent, according to the Ministry of Economic Planning and Development.

Without oil, which accounts for 40 percent of gross foreign exchange outlay, the economy is dependent on commodity prices, depressed by recession, and tourism, which fell 0.4 percent in terms of beds occupied between January and October last year.

between January and October last year.

"The various indicators of primary commodity export prices are all showing substantial falls in 1981 compared with the position in 1980 and until these indicators start to point upwards, the economic prospects for most of the poorer countries will remain clouded and uncertain, Economic Planning

Minister Zakary Onyonka said in November.
With the rest of the world still grappling with recession and no recovery in demand on the horizon, the Kenyan government is working on a plan to reduce the balance of payments deficit and government spending.

The current account paymeots deficit for 1980 was 6.65 billion shillings ($665 million) compared to 3.56 billion shillings ($356 million) in 1979. Figures for last year are not yet available hut officials say they will be poor.

The overall trade deficit for 1981 is expected to be 7.4 hillion shillings ($744 millioo), 16 percent down on the 1980 deficit of 8.8 billion shillings ($880 million)

g.g billion shillings ($880 million)

Kenyan officials say the improvement is partly due to two devaluations in February and September last year which reduced the currency's value by about 30 percent against the dollar.

Clouds gather on 'apan's economic horizon

TOKYO, April 6 (R) — Faced with a contraction in the all-important export market and sluggish demand from within, the Japanese 'economic miracle,' long the envy of less dynamic economies, is showing signs of slowing down signs of slowing down.

A falling yeo and a highly nervous stock market are the outward signs of a mounting concern about the ability of the Japanese economy to cootinue to achieve growth rates that for most other advanced economies, struggling against recessioo, have proved elusive

The most recent pointer to a gathering of clouds oo the economic horizon came with the release of the latest quarterly gross national product (GNP) figures, which showed that in the period from October to last December GNP fell by 0.9 perceot, the first decline in nearly seveo years.

Japanese officials - coocede that the decline, attributed chiefly to slower exports and increased imports, will make it difficult for Japan to attain its target of a 4.1 percent expansion of the economy in the latest fiscal year, ending this month.

Apart from their threats of protectiooism against a relentless export drive, Japan's trading partners are already beginning to reduce their purchases of Japanese goods, a fact underlined by the fall of 4.5 percent in Japan's exports in the latest October-December quarter.

Government and private economists say that while markets in the Middle East, Southeast Asia and South America are becoming increasingly important, their growth will oot be sufficient to make up for contracting demand for Japanese exports from the more advanced trading partners in the West.

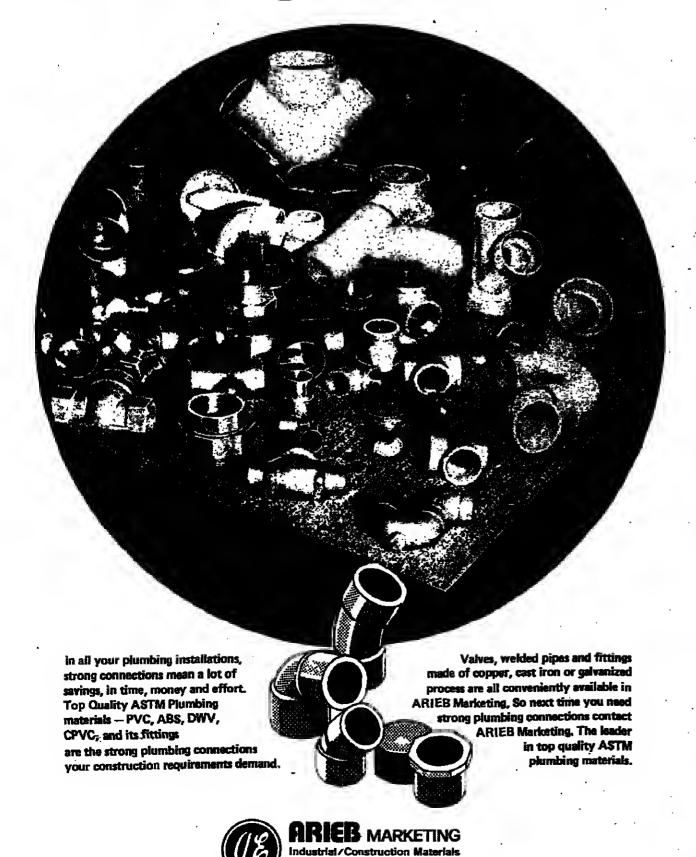

To maintain growth in the economy in spite of this, the Japanese government has taken steps to boost domestic demand in increase government revolute.

But many economists say that the two concrete measures announced so far — a speeding up in public works expenditure in the new fiscal year and a boost to housing construction — will barely compensate for the fall-off m exports. Moreover, a reduction of 0.3 perceot in long-term interest rates, expected to be announced next mooth, will give only a minor boost to the economy.

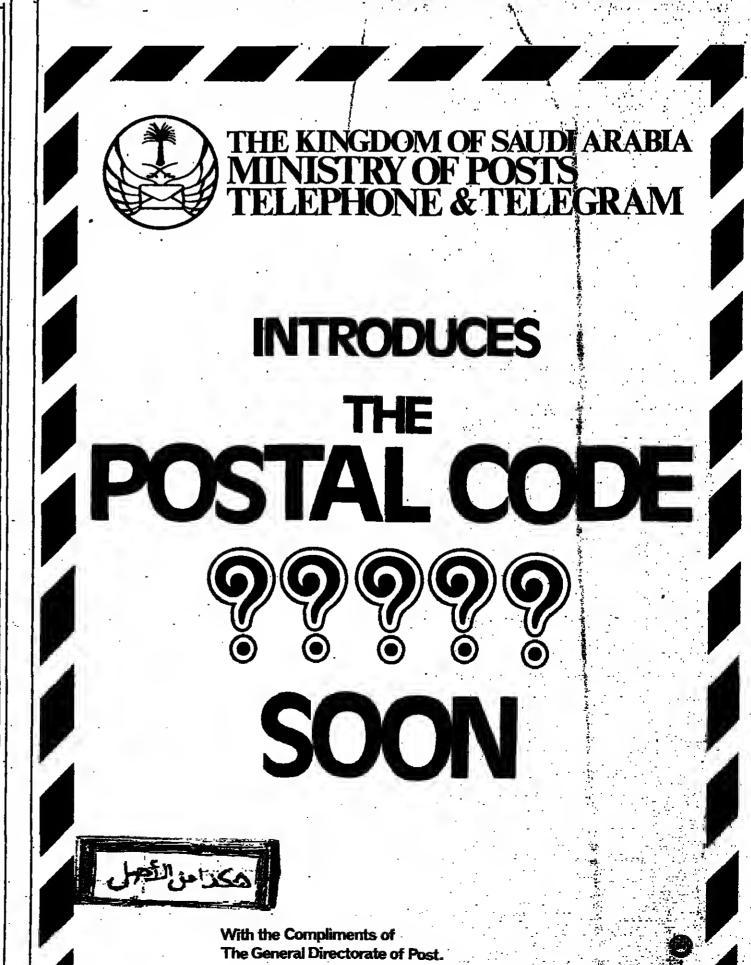

Apart from these steps, the government is divided over what future economic measures are desirable. Many inside the government, including Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, want to cut the overall level of government spending with the aim of balancing the hudget by the end of 1984.

Others, notably the Economic Planning Agency (EPA) director-general, Toshio Komoto, favor the injection of more public money to stimulate demand and thereby increase government revenues.

Global exports dip, IMF says

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP) — The U.S. dollar value of world exports in 1981 declined from the 1980 figure of $1,873 billion, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) has reported.

This represented the first annual decline in the dollar value of world trade since 1958, the 1MF said Mooday.

Consumer price inflation in industrial countries eased again in January wheo the 12-mooth rate of increase for the group was 8.9 percent compared with 9.3 percent in December and with an average 1981 rate of 9.9 percent, it said.

In the April issue of International Finan cial Statistics, its monthly publication, the IMF also said the industrial countries' foreign exchange reserves declined, on halance, by $3.58 hillion to February. The largest loss was recorded by Italy with $1.28 billion and the largest gain by Australia with $300 million. For the industrial countries, there was an estimated export decline in 1981 of 2 percent in dollar terms,

"The January 1982 returns for 12 industrial countries indicate a continuing slowdown with combined export receipts nearly 19 percent below December 1981, but only 1 percent below January 1981," the IMF said. For the oil exporting countries, the U.S.

U.S. to hike mineral production

WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP) — U.S. President Ronald Reagan, noting the "critical rule of minerals to our economy, national defense and standard of living," unveiled a plan to reduce U.S. dependence on overseas supplies of strategic minerals.

The administration has been developing the plan for almost a year with Interior Secretary James Watt directing the effort, which involved nearly 20 departments and agen-

The plan is a statement of policy detailing broad goals the administration hopes to reach to find new sources of minerals in this country and conduct research to provide substitutes for minerals.

As one of its goals, the plan pledges to keep the public's land open to appropriate mineral exploration and development".

Environmentalists attacked the 33-page policy statement, saying it grossly exaggerated the country's dependence on minerals.

We have major concerns with the policy." said official of the Wilderness Society. "It proposes further substantial weakening of existing evironmental policies and regulatory programs to give miners free reign of public lands," he added.

In forwarding the plan to Congress, Reagan said the administration would continue its inventory of federal lands for potential minerals and would press for wilderness legislation that would allow the country to re-examine whether those lands should remain closed to mining after the year 2000.

Europe gas import seen rising 3-fold

AMSTERDAM, April 6 (R) - The Netherlands' state controlled gas company forecast that Western Europe would have to import nearly half its gas supplies by the year 2000 and offered its huge Groningen field as a reserve tu give security of supply.

The company, Nederlands Gasunie, said its forecast was based on a new analysis of demand and output data. It estimated 47 percent of West Europe's gas supplies would be imported by the turn of the century compared with 14 percent in 1980.

About 25 percent of the supplies would come from the Soviet Union, Gasunie said. West Europe's plans to rely more beavily on Soviet gas have caused concern to the United States, which opposes huilding of a pipeline to import Siherian gas.

North Africa would provide another 13 percent, West Africa six and the Middle East three percent, Gasunie forecast in a paper presented to an oil and gas conference in Ams-

Dollar chalks up more gains

JEDDAH, April 6 - The dollar was stronger Tuesday's European exchange markets despite some easing of Eurodollar deposit rates. The one-month dollar deposit rate is now quoted at 15 1/4 - 15 3/8 percent compared with closing Monday levels of 15 5/16 - 15 7/16 percent. The dollar, however, managed to chalk up some major gains especially against the British pound and the Japanese yen. Sterling has now fallen to a four and a half year low level of 1.7503 against the American currency, and despite some sharp rises in U.K. short-term interest rates, exchange market source believe that the pound will remain unstable as long as the Falkland Islands issue remains unresol-

As to the Japanese eurrency, the yen fell to 249.00 levels in Tokyo, before some determined Bank of Japan support for the yen brought the rate down to 248.50 levels. The size of the Japanese central bank intervention was not revealed hut some sources put it at $ 200 million for Tuesday alone.

In the hullion markets, gold prices rose by between $ 9 to $ 10 an ounce to trade at $ 347.00 levels Tuesday with gold price rises riding on a crest of international worries over an impending British — Argentinian clash over the Falklands. On Monday, gold prices had traded around $ 338.

Despite some easing of Eurodollar interest rates, which now takes the one-year deposit to 15 1/8-15 1/4 percent levels, Monday market sentiments are still geared toward further U.S. dollar interest rate rises if the U.S. federal hudget deficit situation is not tackled in a meaningful way. With the pressure on European currencies to further cut back on their interest rates due to falls in inflation rates, dollar interest rates are the prime cause for the recent dramatic rises in the value of the American currency.

In other currency news, the French franc fell back from 6.2380 levels to trade at 6.2805 on Tuesday, while the Swiss franc fell hack to 1.9680 in sympathy with the German mark's weakening to 2.4150 levels. Toward the close of European trading session Tuesday, the markets detected some sharp profit-taking actions which pushed the dollar down and this could be a foretaste of what might happen of the markets perceive the dollar to have risen too

In the local markets, dealers reported little activity or movement in riyal deposit rates following Monday's rival realignment more by the Saudi Arahian Monetary Agency (SAMA). Trading was cautious, with interbank dealing on the exchange markets taking prices to 3.4300-05 to 3.4302-10 levels all day. In the money markets, riyal deposit rates revealed an almost flat" yield eurve with rates quoted at 13 ¾ - 14 ¼ percent for all tenors. Week-fixed deposit rates averaged at 13 ¾ - 14 ¼ percent on opening but later fell back to 13 1/2 -14 percent.

Lendl made to struggle

McNamara falls at first hurdle

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, April 6(AP)

— Top seed Ivan Lendl, who has just wrested the No.2 spot in the world rankings from American Jimmy Connors, advanced to the second round of the $300,000 Monte Carlo Grand Prix Tennis Tournament with a 7-5, 6-2 victory Tuesday over Pedro Rebolledo of Chile.

"It was the first time I've played on clay since November," said the 22-year-old Czech, who saved two set points before taking the first set on an 8-6 tiehreaker.

West German Peter Elter, a 23-year-old ranked 107th, scored the first upset of the week-long tournament with a fast 6-3, 6-2 win Tuesday over fifth seed Peter McNamara of Australia, who is ranked ninth in the world.

Other seeded players fared better. No.3 Seed Jose-Luis Clerc ousted Italian Gianni Ocleppo 6-2, 7-5 after a difficult second set. The 23-year-old Argentine, ranked fifth, was down 5-1 before he made an amazing comeback — winning the next six games and taking the match on an ace.

Czech Tomas Smid, the No. 8 seed, had little difficulty in defeating Mario Martinez of Bolivia, 6-1, 6-3. No. 2 seed Guillermo Villas of Argentina, No. 6 seed Yannick Noah of France and No. 7 seed Balazs Taroczy of Hungary were to play their first-round matches later Tuesday.

In two late matches Monday, Peruvian Pahlo Arraya rallied to defeat American Jimmy Arias in a three-set thriller. Arraya scored a 3-6, 7-6, 6-3 verdict. In another match, two former junior Wimbledon champions clashed. Frenchman Thierry Tulasne bested Indian Ramesb Krishnan 6-1, 6-4.

Lendl is trying for his trying for his first title at Monte Carlo and then plans to play in tournaments in Houston, Dallas, Madrid, Dusseldorf and Tokyo before the French OPEC begins in May. "I haven't yet decided if I'll play Wimhledon this year," Lendl said. "I'm not going to make a decision until around the French Open."

Lendl said he might like to rest for a month after the French Open, the first of the four Grand Slam events. "If I'm not tired after the French Open, I'll play Wimbledon," he said. "But if I am feeling tired, I'm going to be thinking about it. I've had a very heavy schedule—I haven't stopped for nearly three years."

He also criticized the organization at Wimbledon. Obviously, Wimbledon is not the most favorite tournament for players," the Czech star said. "The players don't think they're treated well over there. Fore me, 1 need to practice a lot and they only allow me a half hour in the morning. It's ridiculous."

Bjorn Borg, now ranked sixth, also has not yet said if he plans to play at Wimhledon this year. The 25-year-old Swede won his first-round match Monday after having to qualify to enter the tournament because of his decision to play in less than 10 Grand Prix events this year. Borg and Lendl are expected to meet in the semifinals at Monte Carlo Saturday if neither of them suffer a defeat before then. The $60,000 title match is to be played Sunday.

Meanwhile in Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, Korean player Duk Lee overcame Britain's former Wimbledon champion Virginia Wade to advance to the second round of a women's international tennis tournament bere Monday.

The 28-year-old Korean dropped the first set but went on to win a hard-fought 446, 6-4, 6-2 against Wade, 36. Twenty-two-year-old Anne Hohbs was another first-round British casualty, going out to Betsey Nagelsen of the United States, 1-6, 2-6.

Andrea Leand dropped just two games while handing Joyce Portman a 6-1, 6-1 drubbing in an all-American clash, while Romanian Virginia Ruzici downed American Kate Latham 6-3, 6-1 in other first round clashes. Chris Evert Lloyd, Martina Navratilova and Evonne Goolagong-Cawley are among the stars to participate in the $200,000 tournament.

In New York Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, who captured consecutive tournaments in Rotterdam and Milan, was unanimously named Volvo Grand Prix player of the month for March by a panel of tennis writers.

Since the Volvo Masters Tournament in New York in January, Vilas: has seen his Association of Teunis professionals' ranking jump from No. 6 to No. 4 in the world, moving past countryman Jose-Luis Clerc and Swede Bjorn Borg. At both Rotterdam and Milan, Vilas defeated No. 2-ranked Jimmy Connors in the finals.

From World Cup Soccer

Ted Croker denies move to withdraw countries plus Scotland could come under

LONDON, April 6 (AFP) — British World Cup plans are going ahead as scheduled, despite Britain's conflict with Argentina.

English Foothall Association secretary Ted Croker Tuesday denied reports that the three home countries could be forced to withdraw from the 1982 finals in Spain because of the Falkland Islands crisis.

England or Northern Ireland could come up against Argentina in the second round of the tournament. Croker said: "References in the press to England and Argentina and the World Cup are untrue. This matter bas not been officially discussed within the F.A. and will not be in the immediate future.

"If developments are such that other activities hetween the two countries are affected, we shall consider the situation further. But suggestions in the press that we are even considering withdrawing from the World Cup at this stage are totally unfounded and irresponsible."

The Irish F.A. are not making any comment-on the situation, but it is understood that they are determined to go ahead with only their second appearance in the finals. But in the event of a confrontation, both government pressure to withdraw from the tournament rather than play alongside Argentina. That would wreck the finals, and FIFA, the game's governing body, is naturally monitoring the situation. But FIFA, who could probably resist demands to expel Argentina, are so far refusing to make any decisions.

Meanwhile, sky-high hotel prices and booked-up hotels in Spain means that about 10,000 English foothall fans are planning to stay on the French side of the Basque coast.

The fans will make a daily trek across the border to watch the English team play its first round matches in Bilhao in the Spanish Basque country. Hoteliers on the French side of the border are divided between those who are prepared to take a gamble on the notoriously rowdy English fans and those who prefer to depend on their traditional less rowdy clientele.

Camp sites along the coast which boast ten thousand places have already let about half of these to the English. But following contact with the British authorities special arrangements have heen made to get Englishrecruited security staff in each camp to keep an eye on the English fans.

Some hotel managers are doing their best to minimize the risk to their peace and property hy asking travel agents to send them family bookings only and not individual football fans. One French botelkeeper, who is already renewing his insurance said, "We don't really know yet whether it would be better to hope that England wins or loses. In any case, I fear that we will have to deal with a number of outhreaks of trouble.

International Soccer Federation President Joao Havelange voiced support for the 24sided World Cup format, calling it an "excellent idea."

"It's an excellent thing that should not ever be ahandoned," he said during a press conference at a Budapest hotel. Havelange also denied reports of the federation receiving notification that Columbia was stepping down as the scheduled host of the 1986 World Cup championship. The federation adopted a new championship format in 1978, increasing the number of competitors from 16 to 24 teams.

This year's World Cup Championship, to be held in Spain in June, will mark the first time the 24-team format is used.

In Spain

Czechoslovakia may bank on experience

CZECHOSLOVAKIA, April 6 (AP) — If the World Soccer Cup in Spain is to be decided by experience, Czechoslovakia could be formidable. The Czechs have kept hasically the same team for the last half-dozen years. They finished third in the European Championship two years ago.

At the heart of Czech football are two seasoned stars of Dukla Prague — Striker Zdenek Neboda, who recently took a law defree at Prague University, and Ladislav Vizék, a hall artist — plus veteran striker Marian Masny of Slovan Bratislava.

Bpt the critics wonder if coach Jozef Venglos is being too conscrvative in sticking to his older players. They say Czechoslovakia must switch to younger strikers like Petr Janecka and Werner Licka if they are to survive the first stage of the World Cup.

The Czechs have to edge past either France or England to get into the two top places in their group and advance to the second phase.

Knwait is the fourth team in the group.

The Czechs had a moderately impressive

The Czechs had a moderately impressive record in the qualifying competition. They defeated Wales and the Soviet Union at home and held the Russians to a 1-1 draw in the last away game. Wales edged the Czechs 1-0 at home. Their major slip was to loss 0-3 in Turkey. And surprisingly they managed only a 1-1 draw in Iceland.

Czech soccer players have the reputation of maturing more slowly than players elsewhere. It is rare for teenagers to lay in the Czech First Division. Vengolas, commenting on Czechoslovakia's draw in Spain, said he would rely on the players from the 1980 European Championship side. But later be qualified his remarks.

"We will have to take into account overall performances — in league games and international matches," be said." We have a squad of 30 players to choose from."

A possible newcomer to the World Cup is forward Zdenek Valek, 24, of Banik Ostrava, who does equally well on both wings. He bas forward Zdenek Valek, 24, of Banik Ostrava, who does equally well on both wings. He bas already played for his country once. Another who has been awaiting his chance is Thomas Kriz, 23, of Dukla Prague. Sports writers describe him as a stylish left winger who could become a great player. Until now Marian Masny bas kept him out of the Czech limeup.

Both Venglos and Nehoda, the captain, said Czechoslovakia is in a tight group in Spain. "It is probably the most balanced of the six groups," Nehoda said. "There are no clear favorites. "We don't know the strength of the Kuwaitis. They could be the surprise element. I am told they are surprisingly hard and fast."

Some of the Czech team fear England, but Nehoda sought to reassure them. "The English never seem to play abroad with the zeal they show at home," be said.

As FISA upholds Tyrell's protest

Villeneuve stripped from third berth

LONG BEACH, California, April 6' (Agencies) — Canada's Gilles Villeneuve has been stripped of the third place he won in the United States (West) Formula One Grand Prix here Sunday.

The race commissioners took the decision here Monday after upholding a protest lodged against Ferrari after the race by Keni Tyrell. The commissioners rejected a Ferrari protest against Finn Keke Rosberg's Saudia-William and Austrian winner Niki Lauda's McLaren.

'Tyrell's protest centered on new wings on the Ferrari's of Villeneuve and his French teammate Didier Pironi which almost douhled the aerodynamic on the cars. It was not yet clear whether the Italian team planned to 'appeal.

Protests have become a regular feature of Formula One racing since the start of the season as constructors attempt to force the International Motor Sport Federation (FI-SA) into clarifying its technical regulations so that they can find out how far they can go in introducing innovations.

The Ferrari's pair of rear wings — designed to use air resistance to hold the car to the ground and belp cornering was attacked by Ferrari engineers. The Ferrari's had two rear wings — while other cars in the race had just one wing. Ferrari reportedly contended that the rules dealt only with one of the wings and did not prohibit a second wing.

A Ferrari protest that the first and second place cars had not undergone proper post-race "scrunimeering" was disallowed by the race stewards. As a result of the Villeneuve disqualification, Riccardo Patrese of Italy, driving a Braham, moved up from fourth to third, and Tyrell driver Michele Alboreto of Italy improved from fifth to fourth. Elio De Angelis of Italy of the Lotus team moved up from sixth to fifth.

In the race, once Niki Lauda of Austria got the lead in the Toyota Long Beach Grand Prix, he focused his attention on just surviving until the finish.

"I slowed down because it was important to win," said Lauda, who is making a comeback from a two-year retirement. "If you were five centimeters off the line, you're out," Lauda said after his victory in Sunday's race, referring to aspbalt ripped up by the cars on new sections of the revamped 2.13-mile course through Long Beach streets.

"I think it is not a good idea to resurface the course just before a race." The 33year-old Austrian, driving a McLaren for just the third time since returning to the circuit, protected his lead for the final 10 laps and easily outlasted new Grand Prig. points leader Keke Rosberg of Finland.

Rosberg, who finished 14.660 seconds behind Lauda, said, "There was no racing for the last 28 laps. It was everybody just trying to save themselves and finish the race." Landa and Roseberg weren't the only drivers complaining about the course, which was reshaped from previous races because of the construction of a hotel within the circuit. Some new sections of asphalt broke up as the 75.5-lap race progressed.

Rosberg moved into the Grand Prix points lead after three rounds of the Formula One series, with one more than Alain Prost of France, who lasted just 10 laps Sunday in his turbocharged Renault, and two points ahead of Lauda. Lauda averaged $1.4 mph, far below the record of $2.47 mpb set by Brazilian Nelson Piquet of Brabbam in 1980 on the old course.

Meanwhile, the president of the Spanish Automobile Federation (FEA) Dnjan Rocci leaves here for London Monday to meet president of the Formula One Car Constructors Association (FOCA), Bernie Ecclestone, in a last-ditch attempt to save the Spanish Formula One Grand Prix on June 27.

The FEA cannot afford works at the Jarama track ordered by the International Motor Sport Federation (FISA) and hope that Ecclestone, who until last year had made a deal with the track owners, the Royal Automobile Club of Spain, can come up with a station, has become area works.

The situation has become even more serious for FEA because the Spanish race club refuses to lend the track to them because they claim that FEA failed to put down a deposit within the required time.

Injured Leslie included in Scotland rugby team

GLASGOW, April 6 (AFP) — Gala forward David Leslie has been offered an unexpected chance to join Scotland's tour of Australia this summer, if be can prove his

Leslie hroke his leg playing for his club against Heriot's on February 13, but the Scottish Rugby Union are prepared to take a chance on his recovery. In announcing the 26-strong party for a Five-week tour in June and July, tour manager Ian MacGregor said Tuesday: "It is wise of the selection committee that David Leslie should be the first-choice flanker."

"The latest report from his surgeon is that the injury has mended a great deal more quickly than normal, so there is an outside change he will make it." If Leslie fails in his bid to recapture full fitness, his place will go to Eric Paxton, of Kelso, who won his only cap against Ireland this season.

However, MacGregor stressed that Leslie will be forced to undergo a rigorous examination before boarding the plane to Brishane on June 4. That means a May 23 deadline for the vastly experienced international, whose untimely injury forced him to sit out three of Scotland's international championship games this season. The Scots will take eight uncapped players with them — two more than in the touring party which went to New Zealand last summer.

For the first time a set of twins has been included in a Scottish squad, the experienced back-row forward Jim Calder being joined by his brother Finlay. The two Tests against Australia, to be played in Brisbane and Sydney. Also offer Gerry Mcguiness, Bob Cunningham and Ian Mckie the chance to make their international debuts in the pack.

Full back Peter Dods, the most likely replacement for captain Andy Irvine when he retires, is another newcomer to the full international squad along with centers Rick Gordon and Craig Williamson and scrum-half Gordon Hunter.

Meanwhile, the Barbarians have chosen four hookers in their massive party of 35 players for the four-match tour of Wales.

Phillipe Eintrance, Peter Iqeler, Jeff Herdman and Andy Simpson look set for one match each. Diftrans is one of three French players in the squad, the others being center Christian Belescain and stand-off Bernard Vivies.

A nine-match Rugby Union tour of New Zealand's North Island by an Argentine provincial rugby side is expected to be canceled because of the Falkland Islands crisis., it was reported in Wellington.

The Argentine side was due in Auckland next month, but the hreaking off of diplomatic relations between New Zealand and Argentina could force the tour to be ahandoned. Gourties Rugby Union Chairman. Vic Hinton said the come lation of Argentine airline flights into New Zealand makes the 'S tour very donbtful.'

The New Zealand government Monday revoked landing rights for Aerolineas Argentinas. The team was due on an Aerolineas flight on May? "If there is no solution to the Falklands problem before then, and the flight is canceled, the tour will be off," said Hinton.

Porter confirms Taipei as hosts

TAIPEL, April 6 (AFP) — The Fifth World Women's Softball Championships, threatened by a China-Taiwan dispute, will be held in Taipei as scheduled July 2-11, International Softball Federation (ISF) secretary-general Don Porter announced here Tuesday.

Porter told a press conference that all political problems had been solved and that those countries which had expressed reservations before would now be able to participate in the 10-day event.

The fued centered on Taiwan's insistence on using its flag and national anthem in tournament ceremonies, a move strongly opposed by Peking which claims Taiwan as a province of China. It was understood from Porter's statement that the nationalist Chinese flag would be on display at the tournament grounds but no flag-raising ceremonies would be held. It was also understood that the hosts national anthem would be played only at the close of the games.

manique issued jointly with Ho Ming-Chang, president of the tournament organizing committee. Porter, who declined to answer reporters' questions, said Tuesday's communique was "the last".

BRIEFS

MARANELLO, Italy, (AP) — Growing rumors that Ferrari, Italy's prestigious Formula One team, might withdraw from the 1982 World Championship following bitter controversies about technical regulations of racers, produced a flat "no comment" by high ranking company officials here Tuesday.

PARIS, (AFP) — The Champs Elysees,

France's most famous boulevard, bas been proposed as the site of a future Formula One Grand Prix, project sponsors announced bere Tuesday. The group "Omnisports Et Mecaniques" said they had submitted an application to hold the 1983 French Grand Prix through the streets of the capital, with starting and finishing lines on the Champs Elysees.

MONTE CARLO, (R) — All England clinh chairman Sir Brian Burnett said Tuesday be had talks privately with Swedish star Bjorn

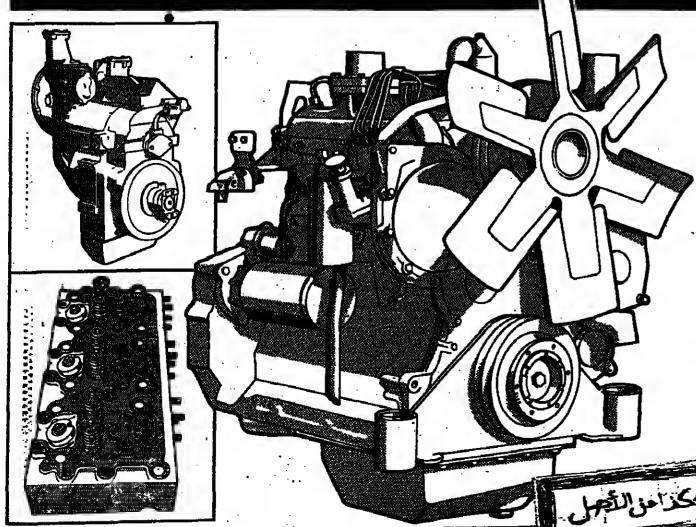

Borg about the problem of Borg's participation in the Wimbledon tennis championships. Sir Brian said in a statement that be had also discussed the situation with the Men's International Tennis Council (ITC) and would report to the all England Club committee on April 15.

LONDONg (AFP) — Yorkshire County cricket club has decided to continue its policy of using only Yorkshire-born cricketers, it was announced Tuesday. The decision follows a ballot which showed that an overwhelming number of members did not want to change the policy.

LONDON, (AFP) — English Fourth Division football clinb Stockport are thinking of changing their sky-lilue and white stripe because it matches too closely the colors of the Argentinian national team.

Umpires' salary raised

Orioles, Cubs begin on impressive note

NEW YORK, April 6 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, Chicago Cubs and Major League umpires were winners Monday as the 1982 Baschall season opened in weather conditions more befitting football.

Eddie Murray's Grand Slam was one of the four bomers by the Orioles as they defeated the Kansas City Royals 13-5 at Baltimore. A record regular season crowd of 52,034 saw the game, the first one completed in the

The Cubs, who got homers from Keith Moreland and Bump Wills, defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in eight innings in the traditional Major League opener at Rivertront Stadium. The game was delayed once by rain in the top of the eighth, and rain forced a halt to the game after eight innings were com-

Earlier Monday, it was announced jointly by the umpires and the Baseball Association that the umpires had agreed on a four-year contract that raises their top salary to $75,000 a year.

Richie Phillips, attorney for the Umpires' Union, said in New York that the contract represented an average increase of 40 percent in the first year and 60 percent over four years. For example, and umpire who earned the $18,000 minimum last year would make

$26,000 in 1982 and $37,000 in the final year of the deal, Phillips said. "This contract places umpires in the top one perceot of all salaried employees in this country," Phillips

Bausano wins 10-km race

By a Staff Writer

JEDDAH, April 6 - Jim Bausano streaked away to his first win of the season getting the better of Dave Bosley in the Riyadh Road Runners 10 km race last Thirtysix runners faced the starter on a cool humid morning and the flat course near the new airport site produced a fast race and many personal best times.

Dave Bosley set the early pace followed by Jim Bausano and Cumulative Champiooship leader John Langholz. Bosley maintained the fast pace through the halfway stage but later faded and Jim Bausano exerted pressure in the second half and took the lead at 8 kms and sprinted to finish with flying colors.

Bosley held oo to the second place with John Langholz coming in third ahead of the fast finishing Chris Vernon. Niyas finished fifth having just held off a challenge by the current Nejd Cross Country champion Tim Having snatched the third berth, John Langholz maintained his dominance of the Cumulative Championship and now only Art Smith is tied with him on the distance. Gordon Nicol took over the third place from Wilf Deck and Gary Barker continues his clim up the ladder, moving into the fifth position. However, the runner who has taken the downward trend is Rod Taylor, who occupied the second spot a month ago and has slumped to eight place.

Taylor won the 5 km event during the weekeod clocking 18.47. He was followed by . K. Lacy, C. Gracia and D. Sackett in that order.

The Cumulative Championship after twelve races, with six to go are: 1. John Langholz, 2, Art Smith, 3. Gordon Nicol, 4. Wilf Deck, 5, Gary Barker, 6, Richard Gray, 7. Dave Sarin, 8. Rod Taylor, 9. 1vor John and 10. John Mulholland.

Keen tussle likely in baseball league

By Tom Martella Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, April 6 — Everyone's wondering about the usual things as the 1982 basehall season got off to a hright

Will the American League East hullies beat up on Toronto? (Prohably). Will that division have six of seven clubs above .500 for the second straight year? (It's a good bet.) Will George Steinhrenner find happiness with speed, and without Reggie? (George is never bappy.) Will the Muntreal Expos really do it this year, and next year, as ooe local observer sees it? (Yes.) Are the White Sox actually abandooing medicority?

(Thanks to a husy checkbook, uh-buh.) Are the Dodgers finally too nid? (Uh, they've got a farm system...) Will Houston interest anyone outside of, well, Houston? (You've got to be kidding.) Will anybody recognize the Cincinnati Reds? (Seaver and Bench are back.) Will the Cubs find a new way to break Chicago's heart? (They've probably run out of ways.)

As the new season approached, Arab News scoured the city for the type of baseball fan who says be's baving a sales meeting in box seats at the Orioles' opener. Sure. Anyway Potomac Pete (as he's known in some of the more interesting sections of Washington) came up with these views on

"You've got the defending worto champion Dodgers led by Cy Ynung Rookie nf the Year Fernando Valenzuela," said Pete, failing to mention that the former holdout was blasted in his first spring-training start. *Los Angeles has got Jerry Reuss and Burt Hooten too, and some strong hitting in Steve Garvey, Dusty Baker and Steve Sax. Steve Sax is a second sacker, too. How about the sound of that?"

"The (Houston) Astros always lose in the playoffs, so you don't have to worry about them," Pete went on, obviously not swayed by brilliant Houston pitching

had a major hand in BAC's 51-run victory over SCECO Cricket Club. Apart from shrewd bowling changes and light field placement, Walker struck four crucial blows at a personal cost of 47 runs to steer BAC out of sticky weather. But it was not a one-man show all together. His colleagues lent him a helping hand when the going got a hit rough.

And collectively, though the responsibility lay on the captaio, they saw BAC through.

BAC, making the first use of the

Though there was no flamboyance in the impings, the steady approach saw the innings progress. Yusuf Aziz and M. Kalim, both because of the rather dismal Houston hitting. "Lots of pitchers there, Nolan Ryan, who got his fourth no-hitter last year against, yeah, the Dodgers. Also Don Sutton, Vern Ruhle, Joe Niekro, Dave Smigh, Joe Sambino." Six pitchers on Houston have been signed to multiyear deals that each surpass $1 million.

"The Reds had the best overall record but didn't even make the playoffs," said Pete mirroring the incredulity that surrounded last year's split season because of a 60-day players' strike. "The Cincinnatioutfield packed up for the Big Apple, George Foster heading for the Mets and Ken Griffey and Dave Collins joining the Yankees. But the Reds picked up Cesar Cedono from the Astros.'

Pete wouldn't pick em for Arab News, hut he focused on the Dodgers, Reds and Astros, not mentioning anyone else in the National League West - San Francisco, with an all-new pitching staff; San Diego, which finished 26 games ont last year; and "In the (NI) East," said Pete, warming up to his task, "You get the (Montreal) Expos, who are destined in start the next dynasty in basehall. On the mound you got Steve Rogers, Scott Sanderson, Bill Gullickson ... the Expo pitching's young except for Rogers. Gary Carter, the best catcher in baseball, got his $2 million contract." He better be the best, "And you got Al Oliver, a .305 career-hitter from Texas."

"The competition would be the (Philadelphia) Phillies and the (St. Louis) Cardinals, yeab the Cards. They were at the top of the division last year (in percentage) but didn't go to the playoffs," said Pete, the disgust at last year's solution to a midseason strike extra playoffs - still surfacing." For the Phillies you got Mike Schmidt, a tough hitter, and Pete Rose, who's moving to first. You got Steve Carlton on the mound." And who wouldn't want that.

In the American League East Pete predicts what no one's denying; a real dogfight, play till disaster struck. Prem Kumar left for 25 and was soon followed by Amjad Pervaiz

(40) to set nff a regular procession to the pavilion. Walker employed an attacking field and kept up a sustained attack to cause SCECO's middle-order cave-in.

After Mike Walker had claimed four wickets Skelton, with two for 13, and Asad, with two for 48, snapped up the tail as SCECO were shot out for 150 in 21 overs. Only brief and patchy resistance came from the later

SCECO batsmen against a cootrolled attack.

ranging over as many as six places. "(New York) Yanks, (Detroit) Tigers, (Milwankee) brewers look to be the top ones," Pete nodded. He forgot Baltimore. "The Yanks went for speed instead of power. (Reggie) Jackson went to California as a free agent. Collins came to New York as a free agent from Cincinnati. Steinbrenner gave up minor-league picks for Ken Griffey. On the mound you still got Ron Guidry, Rick Reuschel. Rich "Goose" Gossage out of the bullpen, with an earned run average last year of 0.77." "The Orioles are dpending on veteran starters Jim Palmer, Steve Stone, Mike Flanagan. On the hitting side, they got Cal Ripken, a kid they're looking to for great things this year." The Orioles are old, Pete admitted, but so were the Dodgers. And the

The Brewers have the power hut questionable pitching, despite Rollie Fongers and his ERA of 1.04. Detroit, counting again on scratching out runs, have Kirk Gibson, Alan Trammel, and Lou Whittaker at the plate, with manager Sparky Anderson aiming to play a speed game. Some say it won't work.

Then there's Cleveland, maybe a surprise stnry - but Pntomac Pete's not hacking the Indians. And no one should bank on the Red Sox, whose fans suffer more than any except the Cubs'. "It could be a miracle, yeah a miracle," said Pete, assessing Boston's shot at the division title. "They score a lot of runs, but pitching is definitely a question. It would have to be an exceptional year from Mike Torrez and Dennis Eckersley to make a run. They do bave Carney Lansford. who led the American League io hatting at .336 last year. Pitching will tell the tale."

In the AL West, it's going to be more Billyhall, Pete predicts, "Oakland will use the same innovation that (manager Billy) Martin's getting famous for," said Pete.
"They'll rely on their starters (pitching). and the best outfield in baseball — and the acquisition of Davey Lopes solidifies their

Soviet boxers outstanding in King's Cup

BANGKOK, Thailand April 6 (AP) -The Soviet Union captured the lead Monday in the King's Cup Amateur Boxing Tournament, as the annual event saw many hardfought and close decisions.

Soviet boxers tallied 11 points with last year's champions Kenya and Thailand's Port Authority teams next at ten points each. The Kenyans suffered a big setback when their light heavyweight boxer Daniel Onyango was stopped in the second round by South Korea's Hong Kee Ho. Onyango suffered a cut over his right eyebrow and the ring doctor pronounced him unfit to continue.

Earlier, three bouts ended in split 3-2 decisions. The Thai Airforce's Sompong Naknienim outpointed India's promising Amal Dass on a 3-2 :flyweight decision. So did Egypt's Magdi Wahba over Japan's Chiharu Hagiwara and Australia's David Hall over another Indian, K.B. Chetri in the lightmiddleweight quarterfinals.

Twenty-three teams are taking part in the nine-day tournament which is scheduled to end Thursday. Trophies will be presented to the best boxer and the champion team.

It was confirmed in Nairobi that Kenyan boxer, John lwade died from injuries he received in the ring recently. Iwade, whose death is the first in Kenyan boxing history, was fighting at welterweight for Nairobi pro-vince in the Kenyan Novices Championships at the Prisons Staff Training College in Nairchi.

lwade was carried from the ring unconscious after being knocked out by Sammy Odera of Central Province in the second round. He was knockdown in the first roundtoo, hut was saved by the bell.

Meanwhile, World Boxing Association (WBA) junior hantamweight champion Rafael Pedroza of Panama is a 5-4 favorite over Japanese challenger Jiro Watanabe to retain his crown in Osaka on April 8. An open sparring session here was Ped-roza's first appearance before Japanese boxing fans since his unsuccessful challenge of, former WBA junior flyweight champion Yoko Gushiken in 1979.

Ringside experts picked the champion as a slight favorite but gave Watanabe, WBA's eighth-ranking junior hantamweight, a chance to win if his favorite combination blows land on target.

Pedroza, 27, has a record of 26 wins, including 22 knockouts, seveo losses, and one. draw, while Watanabe, also 27, coters the ring with 14 wins, 10 hy knockout, and one

Haig attacked the concept of a global freeze on nuclear weapons, as urged by a group of senators and a growing number r of communities around the country. Such a freeze at current levels "would perpetuate an unstable and unequal military halance," Haig

"It would reward a decade of Soviet milit-

International Mexican volcano gobbles villages

MEXICO CITY, April 6 (AFP) — Entire villages have disappeared under volcanic lava and the death toll continues to climh as the Chinchonal volcano eruptioo grew in intensity more than one week after a first blast killed at least 20 persons.

The teo-day eruption now affects four states (Tabasco, Chiapas, Vera Cruz and Oaxaca) and covers 500 kms. Thousands of cattle have perished in these areas. In Chiapas, volcanic ash threatens to destroy 50,000 hectares of recently tilled land. Thousands of inhabitants have fled the area, while economiedamage has yet to be calculated.

Rescue operations have been considerahly hampered by the density of volcanic ash, which preveots motor eogines from working, and has plunged the immediate area around the volcano into near permanent darkness.

In Pichucalco, the closest accessible village to the volcano, the roofs of 71 houses fell in under the weight of the volcanic debris. Other villages, Francisco Leo and La Magdalena in particular, have been cut cinemas are being used as shelter by the thousands of refugees who left the most seriously affected areas.

Warm spring triggers flare-up in Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, April 6 (AP) - The arrival of warm, spring weather appears to have triggered an increase in fighting between government troops and anti-Marxist forces in -Afghanistan, a diplomatie report from Kahul said Tuesday. Afghan media meanwhile announced in Kabul that Khalil Ahmad Abawi had beeo oamed deputy prime minister and state-Planning Commission chairman. The diplomatic report, from a source who asked not to be ideotified, said it appeared Abawi had received a major promotioo and that the planning function in the government had been upgraded.

The Planning Commission formerly was headed by Prime Minister Sultan Ali Keshtmand, who was said to have left its running to the vice chairman, Mehrabuddin Pakhtiawal. He was shifted to the vacant presidency of the Afghanistan Bank, Afghan media reported.

Abawi's former joh as chief of the local government organization was taken over by Muhammad Yassin Sadeqi. Informatioo was oot available here oo the new appointees.

It also reported attacks by helicopter guiships and jet fighters on targets in Wardak province to the northwest, but gave no details,

The city dweller's car broke drive in a country lane. He took his jacket off and started tinkering with the engine. There was this cow grazing peacefully in the meadow nearby, which sauntered along to where he was and started looking over his shoulder.

"It's the battery," it said, slowly and distinctly. "Stop fiddling with that sprocket there, for its surely the battery!" The man, as you'd imagine, was terrified. He ran to the nearest farm, where he recounted the episode excitedly to the farmer.

"Was it a black cow with some white along its forehead?" the farmer asked calmly. "Yes, it was." "Then," said the farmer, "I wouldn't put much trust in what it said. That eow knows next to nothing about cars?"

And since that was an animal joke, why not have another?

A man went to visit his friend and found him fussing over a very small, quite unprepossessing looking dog. "What kind of a dog is this?" he asked. "It's a police dog," said the friend. "Well, it doesn't look like a police dog." "Of course not." came the explanation: "It is a secret police setting spring storm that crowned the winter of '82 with deep snows and lashing winds in the midwest bore down Tuesday on the oortheast, which hraced for what could be its worst storm of the year.

At least five persons were killed Mooday as the storms whistled from lows to Ohio, bringing lightning and 72 kph winds that whirled the falling snow and churned up 15-foot waves on Lake Michigan.

Motorists were left without studded snowtires in Iowa, dropping up to 9 inches of snow in Chicago and causing flooding in Indiana, the freak storms moved into the northeast early Tuesday. As the snow began to fall, hlizzard warnings were posted in northern New Jersey, metropolitan New York and Massachusetts, where the National Weather Service said the storm "has the poteotial to be the worst storm of the winter season."

In the west, northern California was dreoched again Tuesday by another in a series of storms that have caused flooding in the lowlands and deep mows in the mountains for more than a week. Hundreds were homeless in flooding that floated mobile homes off their foundations.

Two-hundred persons were evacuated from Squaw Valley, California, and hlizzards closed down a main highway in California's Sierra Nevada. Two forest fires humed out of control in oorth Carolina. The midwestern snowstorms left 8 inches of snow in Toledo, Ohio, early Tuesday.
